R-100 REACHES
MIDATLANTIC IN RACE TO BRITAINSets Fast Pace in Dash for Record.

ST. HUBERT AIRPORT, Montreal, Que., Aug. 14.—(AP)—The British dirigible R-100 in a radio message received here tonight said that at 7 p. m., Chicago daylight time, she was at 32.30 north latitude and 44.10 west longitude, making over 64 miles an hour at an altitude of 1,700 feet.

The position placed the England-bound dirigible at nearly 700 miles southeast of Belle Isle. The message said that the weather was overcast and cloudy.

Flies with Three Engines.
LONDON, Aug. 14.—(AP)—The dirigible R-100, bound for England from Canada, radiated the air ministry today at 1 p. m. Chicago daylight time that she was cruising on three engines and making good speed at 51.40 degrees north latitude and 52.30 west longitude.

The position placed the airship about 160 miles southeast of Belle Isle, following the same course she flew to Canada 15 days ago.

The airship reported she was flying at an altitude of 1,800 feet and through a temperature of 53 degrees, with the weather fine. Her speed at that time was 54 knots.

The dirigible was sighted by several liners at sea, who reported that the ship appeared to be riding the air smoothly.

On Smooth Trip on First Day.
ON BOARD THE AIRSHIP R-100, Aug. 14.—(AP)—The British dirigible R-100 was sailing over the Atlantic, homeward bound and giving every promise that she should make a record eastward crossing.

So fast was the speed, between 75 and 80 miles an hour, that those aboard believed it was possible for the largest airship in the world to reach her home port, Cardington, England, by midnight tomorrow, British summer time (6 p. m. Chicago daylight saving time).

Home Tomorrow at Latest.
It was felt that the dirigible, which left its mooring mast at Montreal at 12:12 p. m. Chicago daylight saving time yesterday, should reach Cardington by 8:25 a. m. Saturday, Chicago daylight saving time, at least, even if held up by winds.

Those aboard are enjoying the flight greatly. When the breakfast of ham and eggs with coffee was served this morning, quite in hotel fashion, hardly a movement of the ship could be felt.

The passengers expressed amazement at the steadiness of the air liner as it penetrated huge ranges of cloud, and the only thing preventing absolute comfort was the fact that no smoking was permitted.

Hot Soup for Dinner.
As darkness fell tonight the electric lights were switched on and a bell summoned the hungry passengers to dinner. Plates of hot soup awaited them in the dining room and they fell to without urging.

The newspaper men on board the British dirigible today turned to work with the crew helping to pump fuel into the tanks in an effort to set a new world's record for the flight across the Atlantic ocean.

This entailed a long trek along the precarious plank walk toward the stern of the ship, with bellowing gas bags above and nothing but a thin bit of steel canvas and a few bracing wires in sternity beneath. It was difficult to work the pump handles while balancing on the narrow plank with a hot estimation of what would happen if a foot slipped.

Runs Through Storm Cloud.
Runs more adventurous spirits accompanied the navigator to the roof of the airship to make his observations. This necessitated a giddy climb up a monkey ladder composed of thin metal rungs strung together by what appeared to one climber as nothing thicker than a piano wire.

Once when passing over a large iceberg it was noticed the temperature dropped two degrees, but a more remarkable experience was the passing from darkness to the sun as the airship slowly plunged into and emerged from a black storm cloud.

ROCKFORD MAN
LATEST VICTIM
OF GUN WARFAREShot Down Beside a Policeman.

The spreading gang warfare, signaled by the murder two weeks ago of Jack Zuta at a Wisconsin resort and emphasized by the slaying Wednesday night of Danny Vailo at Niles Center and the massacre of three Kansas City gangsters near St. Paul, Minn., erupted last night in downtown Rockford.

Eleven shotgun slugs tore into the right arm and abdomen of Joe Giovino, Rockford bootlegger, as he teetered on the curb of South Main street, an instant after he shouted a greeting to Policeman Folke Bengtson. Giovino fell dying at the feet of Bengtson and his partner, Roy Johnson, as a maroon sedan bore away the killer and his driver.

Police Fire On Killers.
In the press of Main street traffic Bengtson managed to fire six shots at the fleeing car, which swerved west at the next corner—Montagu street—and disappeared. Despite the killer's escape, important witnesses were at hand.

Sitting in a sedan parked six feet ahead of where Giovino fell police squads found Tommy Abbott, Chicago thief with reputed Moran-Allejo gang affiliations, with whom the slain man had been conversing a moment before the slugs cut him down. Abbott had been suspected of complicity in the State street shooting of July 1 in which Zuta escaped while an onlooker street car motorman was killed.

In some respects the Rockford attack matched the State street shooting in audacity. The sedan came creeping south in Main street about 9 p. m. when queues of movie goers were waiting before the Capitol and Rialto theaters, each within half a block of where Giovino stood. The bootlegger had been chatting with Abbott—about casual matters, the latter said.

Chats with Policemen.
Concluding his remarks with Abbott, Giovino stepped back a few paces from the Chicagoan's car and was turning to walk north when he saw Policemen Johnson and Bengtson, the latter only just transferred from the uniformed to plain clothes division.

"How is it, Folke?" he grinned. Both policemen stepped forward to study the man with whom Giovino had been talking, they afterwards explained. At that instant the sedan crawled past and the killer, squinting down the barrel of his gun, which rested on the sill of the window, pulled the trigger. There was a whirr as the pellets found their mark. Giovino was dead a few minutes later in the Rockford hospital.

Police Chief August Bargen was conjecturing at the outset that Abbott, regarded in Rockford as a far more notorious character than Giovino, was the target of the gunman. Giovino, elder brother of the victim and reputed one of the town's principal bootleggers, dispelled that theory, however.

Tell of Mystery Calls.
Paul Giovino told the chief that he and Joe had each received three telephone calls in the afternoon from an unidentified individual, who appeared extremely anxious to meet them at any secluded place they chose to discuss a business matter, the nature of which he would not declare. The brothers decided to ignore the caller.

Abbott and three men found with him in his car were questioned and released. His companions, William Sullivan and Elmer Whiteley, Chicagoans, and Joe Piccione, Rockford, satisfied Chief Bargen they knew nothing of the murder, while Abbott had a ready explanation of his presence in the city.

To dispel the suspicion that he might have played Giovino "on the spot," Abbott pointed out that the police had charged him with complicity in an $8,000 jewel robbery there on May 1 and that he had legitimate business in Rockford, interviewing his attorney and the man who had provided his $5,000 bail.

Giovino was 32 years old, married, and the father of three children. While he bore no police record his brothers, Paul and Tony, were recently indicted by a federal grand jury for conspiracy to violate the prohibition law.

Hunt Clews to Triple Slaying.
The news of the Rockford assassination came as the police of Chicago, St. Paul, and Kansas City were striving to clear up the mystery surrounding the triple slaying in Minneapolis.

PARIS TO SPEND

ROAD WIDENING

(Copyright, 1930, by The New York Times.)
PARIS, Aug. 14.—The city of Paris in cooperation with the department of the Seine has decided to tackle one of the most perplexing traffic problems in the world in a manner which should go far toward smoothing out what is now a jigsaw puzzle.

It was announced this evening that work will begin early in the spring upon a program of construction in the capital and suburbs which will require about $40,000,000 and take five years to complete.

New roads giving access to the capital are to be constructed and old ones widened and remade; underground and overhead passages and roadways are to be constructed at strategic points in Paris; old bridges over the Seine are to be widened and several new ones constructed; many dangerous crossings are to be eliminated through broadening of intersecting streets, and a broad roadway completely encircling the corporate limits of Paris and permitting traffic from one suburb to another to reach its destination without going through Paris will be made.

She's Back, an Enoch Arden,
and Is Jailed

Springfield, Vt., Aug. 14.—(AP)—A woman, supposedly dead by suicide more than a year ago, reappeared alive here today to find the husband whom she had left married to another woman and herself the center of a strange mystery in which lay hidden the identity of a body buried as her own in a Chester [Vt.] graveyard.

The woman, Mrs. Catherine Rockwell Packard, wife of a St. Albans candy worker, was under arrest here tonight as a material witness and law officers sought to question the husband, George J. Packard, who a month ago today married another woman in Rutland.

Disappears: A Body Found.
More than a year ago Mrs. Packard disappeared from her Rutland home, leaving her husband, George, and their two children, George Jr., 3, and Helen, 2. In August, last year, the body of a woman was found in a Chester pasture. With it was a suicide note. An autopsy revealed traces of poison in the stomach and suicide was the verdict. Eventually it was identified by Packard as that of his wife and the handwriting of the note as that of Mrs. Packard. The body was buried in Chester and the investigation ended. Suddenly, a few days ago, the supposedly dead woman appeared in Manchester, N. H., alive and well. The fact was brought to the attention of State Detective Edward C. Brown of this state. He questioned her and said she admitted she had written notes similar to the suicide note found with the body in Chester. These, she told him, she wrote during periods of despondency prior to her disappearance.

Insurance Not Paid.
The note found in Chester said: "I am sick of life and am going where I will be happy." The handwriting of this note, Brown said, corresponded with a sample of Mrs. Packard's writing.

Although the body found in Chester was buried as that of Mrs. Packard, the identity had not been accepted by an insurance company which held a policy on her life or by the Vermont Children's Aid society, of which she had been a ward for many years. The insurance policy was for $450 and was payable to Packard's mother. The insurance company had refused payment of the money on the ground that it was not established that the body was that of Mrs. Packard.

Nothing, however, has since been brought forward to establish the identity of the body buried in the Chester graveyard.

Only July 14 last Packard married Margaret L. MacFarland of Rutland in that city. Today they learned for the first time of the reappearance of the supposedly dead woman.

HOLDS UP BANK
IN HOME TOWN,
BUT IS CAUGHT

Hillman, Mich., Aug. 14.—(AP)—Seventeen days ago Thomas Hunt, 24, admits, he came back to Hillman with a companion from Detroit and robbed a home town bank of $15,000. Pursuit became hot and the pair took to a swamp which Hunt remembered from his boyhood days.

Today, hungry, ragged, almost exhausted, Hunt was arrested in a barn on the edge of the swamp by state police who have been watching the section since July 29.

What became of the other man and of the money officers do not know. Hunt told them that his companion, identified by police as Alex Graham of Detroit, had got away and headed for Detroit, but they do not believe this.

Hunt, admitting his part in the crime, appeared to welcome jail because of the food and the bath and the change of clothing which went with it. He lived on berries and on such food as he could steal from farmers' gardens at night, he said.

HAITI CABINET
QUITS; SAYS U. S.
PLEDGE IS BROKEN

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti, Aug. 14.—(AP)—The entire cabinet resigned today in protest against the proposed appointment of Carl Colvin as director of the service technique to succeed Dr. George F. Freeman. Mr. Colvin recently has been acting director.

Protests by Haitians over the administration of the service technique, which is a vocational school—were studied last winter by the Hoover investigating committee. Students went on strike against the administration of Dr. Freeman last year and stoned his residence.

Chicago Men Now Get Greater Clothing Values

The well-dressed man is finding competition increasing these days. The cost of rivaling Beau Brummell has dropped sharply. Clothing values now obtainable at Chicago stores are the most attractive in years. A trip through a number of representative stores reveals that men now have small reason to feel they cannot afford a new suit. Recent reductions in commodity prices were met promptly by sizable cuts in the price of men's clothing.

Chicago retailers are also using this month to reduce stocks. Prices indicate they will meet with success. Savings are to be had not only in purchases of suits but of hosiery of all kinds. Hats, shirts, ties, socks—all carry prices such as have not been equaled in many a month.

THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

St. Louis Pair
Flies Toward
1,000 Hr. Goal

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 15 [Friday].—(AP)—The endurance plane Greater St. Louis whirled over Lambert-St. Louis field toward the 600 hour milestone of its record flight today.

Plane and pilots, Dale ("Red") Jackson and Forest O'Brien, had made their home in the sky continuously for 584½ hours, more than 24 days, at 1:41 a. m. They had put the previous record, that of the Hunter brothers, more than a day and a half behind them.

The champion sky riding aviators gave no intimation that they would defer from their expressed determination to remain in the air for 1,000 hours, and the faithful motor of the ship showed no weakness.

Congratulate Hawks.
Jackson and O'Brien already have put in more than 1,000 hours of endurance flying, 420 hours when they established a world's record in July, 1929, and nearly 600 hours this year to regain the championship. They remain cheerful and are confident of hanging up a record that will discourage all opposition from trying to wrest it from them again.

"We'll be down when the motor stops running," the flyers said in a note sent down last night.

The flyers spent much of today going through fan mail and messages of congratulations which continued to arrive. They took enough time, however, to wire their congratulations to Capt. Frank Hawks, who Wednesday set a new west-east transcontinental flight record.

Praises Wife's Cooking.
One letter addressed to Mrs. O'Brien said: "I am sending my felicitations to the one I consider the real heroine of the flight. Any woman who cooks that many consecutive meals is deserving of no less than a citation."

Mrs. O'Brien has been helping prepare meals for the flyers.

The airmen have received an invitation to demonstrate their method of refueling at an air show sponsored by the Knight Light Airplane club at Montreal, Que., next month. It was turned over by William Pickens, the flyers' manager.

6 FALL TO DEATH
IN ALPS HUNTING FOR EDELWEISS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
INNSBRUCK, Austria, Aug. 14.—Climbing the crazy Austrian Alps in search of edelweiss cost the lives of six persons yesterday and today. They fell to their deaths when they ventured over rocky paths to pick the elusive mountain flower. Three were married women, including Countess Luiza of Milan, who fell over a cliff near Prags. The other three were German schoolboys taking a Tyrolean holiday with their teacher. Disregarding his warnings of danger, they started to climb for edelweiss. Running into a snow patch covered with a thin coating of ice, they slipped into space and were killed instantly.

Coastless Men Under Ban
at New Board of Trade

He who hustles about the New Board of Trade building in his shirt-sleeves, sans coat, will hereafter be looked upon as "one who lowers the tone of the building." To preserve the dignity due the new structure, the building agent, it was learned yesterday, has ordered all tenants to see that employees are properly clad, from the janitors to clerks in brokers' offices. The messengers of all tenants must dress in smart uniforms.

Method of Allocation.

This relief can be achieved justly and effectively only upon, first, a determination of the counties where such assistance is required, and second, upon an accurate determination of the needs of each family. In order that such determinations may be made and assistance supplied as each case may require, the following organization is agreed upon:

1. Each governor who considers that a situation requiring emergency relief exists within his state shall create a drought relief committee under the chairmanship of a leading citizen, and embracing in its membership a state agricultural official, a leading banker, a Red Cross representative, a railway

13 GOVERNORS
AGREE TO AID IN LOANS TO NEEDYRed Cross Urged to Help, Too.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
Washington, D. C., Aug. 14.—[Special.]—Foundations for a country-wide drought relief organization, extending from a federal council down to county committees, were laid today at President Hoover's conference with the governors or their spokesmen from thirteen states most acutely affected by the prolonged dry spell.

After a five hour session in the White House cabinet room, the President announced that the conferees had agreed upon a general program involving loans to stricken farmers, employment, reduced rail rates, and Red Cross assistance where needed.

The Plan in Brief.
The relief plan, in brief, calls for the immediate appointment of a federal committee by the President, a state committee by each governor, and organization of county committees in turn by the state groups. Through this network of committees, the needs, (physical and financial, of individual farm families, will be reported and met as quickly as possible until the damaged districts are rehabilitated.

The chief objectives were outlined by the President to the conferees. Assisting families deprived of means of support by crop failure to survive the winter was the chief of these. Secondary was the prevention of unnecessary sacrifice of live stock and protection of public health.

Means of Accomplishment.
To accomplish this, the President said he proposed that money be loaned, if necessary with the assistance of state or nation; that the Red Cross be asked to aid, that employment of needy farmers be arranged and that reduced freight rates be made available on food, feed, and live stock in the distressed districts.

Starting at 2:30 p. m. the President's conference today lasted until nearly 7 o'clock. After each state spokesman had told of conditions in his state the President laid his plan, already well prepared, before his guests and it was discussed fully.

With the issuance of the statement of the President it was explained that the conference was formally at an end and that most of the governors would start home tonight to put the program into operation in their states.

The text of the President's statement follows:

We have canvassed the information secured by state and national surveys as to drought conditions. While the extent of the damage cannot yet be determined, it is certain that there are at least 250 counties most acutely affected where some degree of relief must be provided. It was the view of the conference that the burden of effective organization to meet the situation over the winter in the acutely affected counties rests primarily upon the counties and the states themselves, supplemented by such cooperation and assistance as may be found necessary on the part of the federal government.

The objective of such relief is:

(a) To assist families over the winter who are deprived of means of support through failure of their crops.

(b) To prevent unnecessary sacrifice of live stock.

(c) Protection to public health.

This is to be accomplished by:

(a) Pledging of loans privately or state or national agencies.

(b) Red Cross assistance.

(c) Employment.

(d) Reduced railway rates for food, feed and live stock to the distressed districts.

Method of Allocation.

This relief can be achieved justly and effectively only upon, first, a determination of the counties where such assistance is required, and second, upon an accurate determination of the needs of each family. In order that such determinations may be made and assistance supplied as each case may require, the following organization is agreed upon:

representative, and such farmers and others as the situation may require. This committee to take general charge of relief measures within the state.

Committee for Each County.

2. The state committee to determine the drought counties where there is need for organized relief and to organize a committee in each such county, likewise under the chairmanship of a leading citizen, and embracing the county agricultural agent, a leading banker, county Red Cross leader, farmers and others.

3. The county committees will receive individual applications for relief and recommend the method of treatment, and coordinate the various agencies in service thereto by way of loans, Red Cross assistance, employment, etc. The state committee, in cooperation with the county committees, to determine which counties are in need beyond the resources of the people of the county and in what direction, i. e., whether loans are required beyond the ability of the local banks, or Red Cross assistance beyond the resources of the county chapter; what quantities of imports of feed or food are required, etc. The state committee to cooperate with national agencies if these requirements are beyond the state resources.

President's Committee.

4. The President will set up a committee comprising representatives of the department of agriculture, the federal farm board, the federal farm loan board, the Red Cross, the American Railway association, the public health service. This committee, through its chairman, will coordinate national activities and national support to the state and county committees.

5. The methods for provision of credit beyond local or state resources for the purchase of feed, seed, movement of live stock, or support of families over the winter will be developed by state committees, in cooperation with the federal farm board, the intermediate credit system, and other federal agencies.

6. The Red Cross will organize its own committees in each drought county, the chairman of which will be a member of the county drought relief committee. The national Red Cross has made a preliminary allocation of $5,000,000 pending determination of the aggregate need.

7. The railways have already generously reduced rates by 50 per cent on food and feed, inward to the drought counties and live stock movement outward, to dealers and persons who are entitled to relief and so designated by the county agents or the committees created above.

Relief for Live Stock.

8. The department of agriculture will secure and disseminate information as to sources of feed supply and localities to which live stock may be shipped. It will examine the possibilities of advancing state road allowances to drought areas in order to increase employment.

9. In the states of Iowa, Nebraska, and Kansas, and others having a surplus of feed, it is recommended that a state committee be set up to co-operate with the committee in the states of surplus live stock. Although the President's relief program differed radically from some of the proposals made by the governors, none of them chose afterward to take issue with it.

The entire conference took place behind closed doors and it was agreed that the President alone should be spokesman as to the conclusions reached. For that reason the governors confined their comments largely to assurances that they would cooperate in the program and were reluctant to discuss its merits or demerits, at least while they were Mr. Hoover's guests.

Stand on Loans Changed.

Prior to the conference several of the governors, including Emmerson of Illinois and Leslie of Indiana, suggested that the government should furnish direct financial relief to farmers through loans from the farm board, farm loan board, intermediate credit banks, or some other federal agency and stand whatever it was incurred.

Mr. Hoover's plan, on the contrary, provides for use of local, county, or state money first with possible use of federal funds as only a background exigency.

Others in the governors' delegation upon their arrival hinted that were the relief burden put upon the states today's conference would have been futile, as nothing would be accomplished that could not be done by the

Rain Relieves Some States as Governors Visit Hoover

Washington, D. C., Aug. 14.—(Special.)—As if timed to coincide with the President's conference with governors, rain started to fall late yesterday in the heart of the drought stricken area extending from the lower lake region of northern Ohio to eastern Missouri and south to middle Tennessee. The rain was substantial, in several places amounting to more than an inch.

The rainfall at Springfield, Ill., was 1.4 inches; at Joplin, Mo., 1.8 inches; at Terre Haute, Ind., 1.24 inches; with almost an inch at Evansville, Ind., and Nashville, Tenn.

Within the next 36 hours, the weather bureau predicted, the rain belt will extend southward over an area extending from the middle Appalachian region westward over Tennessee, Arkansas, northern Oklahoma, and northwest Texas. In southern Illinois, Indiana and Ohio, where the corn crop is badly burned and feed and pasture scarce, a second period of rain is forecast, bringing what the bureau described as "material relief."

Hot Weather Also Halted. Although the bureau officials declined to say that the drought is definitely broken everywhere, they declared that it had done the worst of its damage. So far as hot weather is concerned, they said, it is finished, with no prospect of a return to high temperatures for the next several days in any of the drought areas. Although the bureau officials declined to say that the drought is definitely broken everywhere, they declared that it had done the worst of its damage. So far as hot weather is concerned, they said, it is finished, with no prospect of a return to high temperatures for the next several days in any of the drought areas.

Gov. Emerson of Nebraska was the most optimistic. He said that conditions were "not bad" and that Nebraska would have a feed surplus to ship. Although the corn crop has been cut 70 million bushels, he said, Nebraska had a 60 million bushel carryover this year.

In one form or another the governors proposed the extension of government money as credit to stricken farmers for the most effective kind of relief. One or two suggested purchase and distribution of feed by the farm board. All were agreed that the recent rail rate reductions would be highly beneficial.

Gov. Erickson of Montana proposed that the farm board buy up cattle and sheep to save them, but Vice Chairman Stone of the farm board declared such a course would be illegal.

Twenty county agents in Illinois reported that the corn crop is more than 75 per cent a failure and in ten counties emergency aid for farm families was said to be needed. In virtually all of the southern counties pastures were reported to be virtually gone, while 75 per cent of these counties will need live stock feed from the outside. Half of the Illinois county agents asked for some kind of financial relief for the farmers.

Gov. Leslie of Indiana, however, having abandoned their own plans and joined hands with the President. Immediately following the announcement of the conference's conclusions by Mr. Hoover, the entire band of governors were guests of the President at a dinner at the White House.

Gov. Louis L. Emmerson, who represented Illinois, announced that he would leave on a midnight train for Chicago and will then go to Springfield, where on Monday he will call a conference of state officials to put the President's program into effect. The Illinois state committee, he promised, will be a "working, not a loafing, organization."

states alone. None of them made statements to this effect after the conference, however, all apparently having abandoned their own plans and joined hands with the President.

3,000 CHEER BOY AS HE TRIUMPHS IN FESTIVAL TEST

13 Year Old Is Winner in Cornet Contest.

Thirteen year old Richard Januszewski, in knee breeches, hair slicked and face shined, almost invisible behind the flaring funnel of the business end of his gold cornet, stood alone last night on the stage of the Marbro theater. In the disc of white light from the powerful spotlight that silhouetted him against the back drop he seemed altogether to be in the right of "when a fellow needs friends." The 2,000 folks out front must have felt pretty sorry for Richard.

His fingers began tickling the keys. A tiny silver stream of notes escaped from the funnel, edited and surged above the audience, enveloped it in a thunder of beating surf, the boom of pounding breakers against a rocky shore line, the scream of the wind through the rigging of ships at sea. The tempo ceased, the waves rippled softly over the expanse of ocean, and the dawn came up like a lily.

Frightened by Cheers. The 3,000 people snapped out of their trance and the theater echoed to applause and yells that stamped Richard into the winner. He was so scared by the demonstration he had to be led forth for an encore by his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. John Januszewski of 5525 School street.

They told reporters later how Richard had been studying for five years. He is a pupil in the 8-B grade at Foreman Junior High school. His father is an assistant shipping clerk with an electric ventilating concern. Needless to say, Richard was the unanimous choice of the judges as the winner in the cornet competition in the Chicago semi-final of the Chicago and National Music Festival to be held at Soldiers' field on the night of Aug. 23.

In the trombone contests, the winner was Edward Mendelsohn, 21 years old, of 525 South Kedzie avenue. The judges were Benny Meroff, orchestra leader; George Pearlman, concert violinist; and Carl Craven, choral director.

Other Winners Named. At the Paradise theater, Allen Brooks, 15 years old, 302 North Lotus avenue, won the cornet contest. He has been playing for eight years, and last April won the solo championship for the city high schools. Bobbie Brown, 14 years old, 197 Herrick road, Riverside, won the saxophone contest. Tenor contests were staged at the Tivoli theater, the winner being Harold Goldberg, 23 years old, 6147 Vernon avenue, a law student at De Paul university. The winner of the quartet contest was the Deep River quartet, of which John Burdette, the "Old Man River" singer, is a member. Others are E. C. Welch, 5911 Calumet avenue; Shelby Nichols, 333 East 55th place, and Lemmyon Amos, 5817 Champlain avenue.

The winners at the various district theaters will be heard next week at the Oriental theater. Admission to Soldiers' field for the big festival will cost only 25 cents. There will be no reserved seats. Tickets will go on sale at the Tribune Service bureau, 1 South Dearborn street, at other Tribune service headquarters, and in the lobby of the Tribune tower beginning Monday. Tickets for the contest will be sold at the Tribune Service bureau, 1 South Dearborn street, at other Tribune service headquarters, and in the lobby of the Tribune tower beginning Monday. FIND FINE VOICES

BY EDWARD MOORE. As interesting a point as has come up in all the busy preparations for the Chicago and National Music Festival is the fact that so many have gone into it for the fun of making music. This is not the spirit of baseball, where thousands gather in the stands to watch the efforts of two highly trained, expert teams. It is more that of golf, where every one takes a hand and creates his own score.

Musical for the fun of it. It is the one thing that will make America a musical nation. There is more real joy out of getting in and making your own music than there is in listening to all the highest priced concert and operatic specialties in the world. Golf has become so enormously popular only because people have to get in and play themselves, to feel the thrill of putting a well executed shot down the fairway, to compete with their partners on even terms. It is the same way with music.

Come from 40 Cities. The Chicago and National Music Festival means competition, but it is amateur competition. Musicians from forty cities of five states are meeting in special sessions, amateur contest. Who can tell the outcome? Who wants to? Every contest has had its own thrill. Even now, long before the finals have been held, an astonishing amount of outstanding talent has been uncovered. The other night an unknown colored elevator operator went on and set the audience aflame with enthusiasm over the gorgeousness of his voice. Who can tell but that the next discover-

It would be by no means impossible. Brilliant talents have a curious idea of not caring where they are born.

*THE TRIBUNE and the forty other newspapers that are sponsoring the Chicago and National Music Festival have learned by the fact of their sponsorship that there is an immense amount of musical talent in the middle west. It has been an exhilarating discovery. If through the festival an outlet for some outstanding talents should be provided, so much the better. The best, however, has been the stimulation of amateur music, broadcasting the idea that there is real joy in making music.

CANADA TO CUT IMMIGRATION AS AID TO JOBLESS

OTTAWA, Aug. 14.—[By the Canadian Press.]—An important official announcement on immigration impends and it is understood that restrictions are to be put on immigration to Canada.

The cabinet council sat today with immigration under discussion. There was no official statement at the conclusion, but it is understood that restrictions against newcomers, especially from European countries, will be imposed almost immediately as a step toward remedying unemployment conditions.

The so-called railway agreements for bringing immigrants into the dominion will expire on Oct. 1. These agreements will not be renewed in their present form, and it is reported that the number of immigrants now coming to the dominion under the agreement will be curtailed.

KRAFT INQUIRY WORKER GETS CLERICAL JOB

Investigator Helps on Inventory.

Arthur R. Johnson, for thirteen years an investigator for the United States army, has been assigned to duty in the basement of the quartermaster's depot, 1918 West Pershing road, as a property checker. It was disclosed yesterday, Johnson was first informed of his assignment to the clerical role after his investigation resulted last month in the indictment of Col. Charles J. Kraft for embezzlement and the disclosure of $200,000 Illinois National Guard scandal.

Johnson refused to discuss the case yesterday, but the report that he was to check property was confirmed by Col. C. L. Corbin, commanding officer of the quartermaster depot and Johnson's superior. Col. Corbin also stated Johnson had requested a leave of absence after working at his new duties for one day.

Denies "Put in Cage" Rumor. "He told me he wanted to try to get into some other line of government service," said Col. Corbin "and I granted him the leave of absence."

Reports at the federal building that Johnson was "put in a cage" following his investigation of Illinois National Guard affairs and the Kraft case were denied by Col. Corbin. Col. Corbin was informed that the records show the government was forced to put Johnson under subpoena during the last twenty-two days of the Kraft inquiry to prevent his being assigned to other work.

"Johnson was working for the 6th corps area headquarters, under command of Maj. Gen. Frank J. Parker, on the Kraft case," said Col. Corbin.

Stokes Tells of Subpoena. Col. M. B. Stokes, chief of staff of the 6th corps area, was asked about the subpoena.

"That was simply to keep the records straight," he said. "We felt that Johnson had been away from his regular department too long. Col. Corbin said he needed Johnson. United States attorney Johnson said the investigation had not been completed and he put Johnson under subpoena."

Col. Corbin stated Johnson's assignment to the clerical post was no detention.

"During his thirteen years of service, he had ever done any of that sort of work," Col. Corbin was asked. He replied:

"Well, his regular work was in the quartermaster department and he only worked on investigations when Gen. Parker needed him."

According to federal officials, Johnson has never done anything but investigation work.

Johnson's Work Praised. Johnson's work in the Kraft case was commended by United States attorney Johnson and his assistant, James C. Leaton.

"I consider it outrageous to shelve this man after his splendid work," said Mr. Leaton.

Col. Kraft, who commanded the 202d coast artillery, Illinois National Guard, was in charge of the Broadway armory, with conspiring with persons unknown to embezzle funds and put through false claims. The peculations from the government were alleged to have approximated $100,000 and an equal amount was declared by federal authorities to have been lost by the state.

Kraft's resignation was accepted after a National Guard board of inquiry had considered his "moral fitness" to continue in office and had recommended that he be permitted to resign. No other action has been taken by Maj. Gen. Roy D. Keahn, commander of the Illinois National Guard.

INSURGENT GROUP OF MINERS' UNION GETS REBUFF FROM GREEN

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 14.—[By The Tribune.]

The two year old struggle between President John L. Lewis of the United Mine Workers of America and his opponents in the Illinois union reached a climax today when the insurgent faction was virtually read out of the American Federation of Labor.

A letter to Secretary Victor A. Olander of the Illinois Federation from President William Green of the American Federation requested that delegates from the revolting Flawick, Illinois group be denied seats at the state federation convention in Springfield, starting Sept. 15.

President Green's request marked his first official action against the new Illinois union since its formation at Springfield March 15.

2 BOYS KILLED AS AUTO TOLL MOUNTS TO 606

Two boys, 9 and 10 years old, were killed in auto accidents yesterday as four deaths raised Cook county's motor toll for the year to 606.

Houlihan told the Albany Park police the boy stepped from behind a line of parked autos into the path of the machine.

INDICT WOMAN, EX-PRESIDENT IN BANK SHORTAGE

Both Deny Any Part in $200,000 Embezzlement

Carl A. Mueller, 323 North Long avenue, formerly president of the Laramie State bank, 5200 West Chicago avenue, and Miss Anna E. Watkins, 1247 North Dearborn street, formerly an employee of the bank's safety vault department, were named yesterday in indictments charging them with embezzlement and conspiracy. Both denied having received any of the $200,000 said to have been taken. Assistant State's Attorney Henry E. Ayres and Leonard M. Rice, who have been investigating the criminal charges against the bank officials, said the $200,000 had been paid back to the bank by members of its board of directors and at present the bank is in sound financial condition. It has been reorganized this year with new officers in charge.

Two Others Are Hit. The true bills also charge Alfred Brucker, former cashier, and Julius B. Matthews, formerly assistant cashier, with individual embezzlements from the bank. Matthews was accused of having taken $13,316 and the amount charged to Brucker was $28,000.

According to Prosecutor Ayres, Mueller juggled accounts to cover transactions amounting to $179,000, and Miss Watkins, as bookkeeper, made false entries to hide her employer's acts. Mueller's method was explained by the prosecutors as follows: He had the money raised by a mortgage on the bank's new building transferred to his personal account, and his account was credited when ever any bills were paid. They said the books show he took credit for payments not made and that others were listed twice to the benefit of Mueller's account. Also he charged the bank for materials put in his own home.

Tells $18,000 Transaction. "In one instance he had a friend sign a note for $18,000, saying he needed it for the expected visit of the bank examiner," Mr. Ayres said. "Then he credited his personal account with the $18,000."

Mr. Ayres said he had not discovered what Mueller had done with the money and he had not heard Mueller's name linked with "Miss Watkins." Mueller was not a stock market loser, he declared, and he said he could not say that Miss Watkins had ever received a cent of the money embezzled.

"I still insist upon an early trial of the indictments against me and I entertain no doubt it will be demonstrated that such indictments are unjust and unwarranted," Mueller said.

Let of the Laramie State bank and the beautiful building it now occupies. When I started I had a comfortable fortune. All that and about $140,000 more I borrowed from friends have gone to the bank and the building.

Banker Tells His Side. "Last December the state auditor decided some assets in the bank should be removed. In order to have this done I assigned to certain men all my stock and also all my other property and assets. These men claimed it was an absolute assignment. I claimed it was only to secure them from all advances they might make to remove such assets from the bank and rob the bank. These men claimed an opportunity to redeem my property. After that I was threatened with an indictment."

"They have got everything; I have nothing. Yet, in effect, accuse me of robbing the bank. The charge is not only false, it is ridiculous."

Miss Watkins said her job at the bank was merely that of keeper of the keys and records of the vault and she said she had been one of the few nothing of Mueller's private affairs.

58 DRYS INVADE TERREHAUTE; NAB 25 IN 35 RAIDS

Fifty-eight prohibition agents, many of them from Chicago, led by George D. Hurlbut, assistant prohibition director of the Chicago district, invaded Terre Haute, Ind., last night and raided 35 speakeasies. The agents seized $15,000 worth of liquor and arrested 25 men.

Those arrested were arraigned immediately before United States Commissioner Clyde Randall of Terre Haute. More than a dozen undercover men had been collecting evidence for weeks in preparation for the raids.

One of the largest of the largest prohibition operations ever carried out in the Terre Haute territory.

MARSHALL FIELD III. ADMITS HE WILL WED ENGLISH WOMAN SOON

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 14.—[Special.]—Marshall Field III, grandson of the famous Chicago merchant, whose forthcoming marriage to Mrs. Dudley Coats, an Englishwoman, was recently announced, reached Southampton tonight on the Majestic. Mrs. Coats was at the dock to greet him.

Mr. Field confirmed the announcement of his engagement, declaring: "There are no definite arrangements for the wedding at present, as we have had no opportunity to discuss the plans. The wedding will probably be held in a week or so, possibly in a month, at a well known London church. Our honeymoon will be spent on the continent, and if the weather permits we will make it an aerial trip, using a plane I sent over last week."

At the approach of the patrol boat, which ordered them to stop, the two motorboats increased their speed, and when a couple of warning shots were fired across their bows, separated. The patrol chased one of them and, aiming low, fired 100 rounds of ammunition into her. Then it turned about and made after the other.

Four 50 Rounds into Boat. After coming within shooting distance, the patrol fired fifty rounds into the engine and surrendered.

The captured vessel, a thirty-four foot raised deck skiff with a high powered motor, plainly showed the scars of the encounter when she was towed to the barge office. Several bags containing liquor also had been hit.

The prisoners, Fred Stanzel and George Howell of Baldwin, L. I., were locked up pending their arraignment. Although two patrol boats were sent out to search for the second speedboat, no trace of her could be found and it is believed she might have sunk.

Liquor Found on Steamer. Baltimore, Md., Aug. 14.—[AP.]—Three hundred bottles of choice liquor were discovered aboard the steamer Barco, which docked today from Havre. Nobody would admit ownership, but the master of the ship faces a fine of $1,500.

DELUGE OF RAIN RUINS HOPES OF BRITISH HARVEST

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.] LONDON, Aug. 14.—Crops throughout the British Isles have been ruined by a phenomenal rainfall which has necessitated drastic revisions of the harvest estimates, according to the ministry of agriculture reports issued today.

"The deluge was general over England and Wales," the report reads. "It is unwise to be unduly optimistic. In many districts the crops were laid low by the rains. Wheat, barley and oats all suffered, and even the root crops may have been damaged by the recent heavy rains."

Rain Spoils German Crops. [Chicago Tribune Press Service.] BERLIN, Aug. 14.—Germany's staple foods, wheat, barley, oats and potatoes, have been dangerously imperiled by the rain this summer, agricultural experts declare. The province of Brandenburg, near Berlin, is the worst hit section of the country.

The only crop tolerably good is rye, which is regarded as an irony of fate because farmers have been unable to sell all of last year's rye. It is feared that the failure of the barley crop will affect the brewing of beer.

NEW YORK BEGINS QUIZ INTO FOOD PROFITEERING

[New York Tribune Special.]

State authorities, through Attorney General Hamilton Ward's office today joined federal and city agencies to fight food profiteering by announcing that public hearings would begin Monday to determine whether a "price combination" existed here.

A preliminary survey by Health Commissioner Wynne's newly organized "fair price board" decided that retail merchants were making profits of between 300 and 700 per cent, saying the supply of fruits and vegetables in the wholesale markets of the city is so abundant that wholesalers' prices are half of what they were for the same quality produce a year ago.

District Attorney George E. Brower of Brooklyn said that inquiry had shown that there was no justification for raising the price of milk, neither the brought nor any other known factor warranting the increase which is costing the public $200,000 weekly.

Miss Kane's bank account at the Plaza National Bank of New York was withheld from her recently by action of the creditors of the company which Mr. Posner heads. They maintained that prior to their filing claims of $500,000, he gave her $40,000.

"He didn't get to see me here," she said, "although he tried. I haven't even talked to him over the phone. He didn't make me a present of that money, either. I gave him $40,000 to invest for me, and he didn't invest it. He gave $40,000 back to me."

"BOOP-DOOP" GIRL LEAVES WITHOUT SEEING POSNER

[New York Tribune Special.]

Helen Kane, the "boop-boop-a-doop" girl, left Chicago for Minneapolis last night without, she said, seeing her friend, Murray J. Posner, head of a New York dress concern whose deposit of $400,000 in Miss Kane's name in a New York bank has caused her much worry lately. Mr. Posner yesterday checked out of the Drake hotel. Miss Kane did likewise.

ROCKFORD MAN ADDED TO FOUR SLAIN IN A DAY

Shot by Gangsters as He Talks to Policeman.

Paul carried the information that two of the three victims whose bodies were found on an unfrequented road near White Bear lake had been positively identified as criminal characters from Kansas City. Officials of the Missouri city were asked to cooperate in the attempts to identify the third victim.

Identify Two as Bank Robbers.

The two positively identified were Sammy Silverman, alias Stein, and Frank Coleman, an associate of Solly Weissman, Minneapolis and Kansas City gambler. Last night employees of the bank of Willmar, Minn., viewed the bodies and informed the police that Silverman and the unidentified man were members of a gang of five who robbed the bank of $142,000 on July 15.

Silverman also had been sought for two years for the murder of Traffic Patrolman James H. [Happy] Smith during a bank holdup in Kansas City. Three of Silverman's accomplices were hanged for this crime last July 25.

Coleman, according to Associated Press dispatches from Kansas City, was ordered by the police to leave that city several months ago, and the police declared they had information that Coleman and Silverman were in Minneapolis and St. Paul, "muscling in" on racketeering activities there.

The third victim was first thought to be Adolph [Butch] Myers, a Twin City hoodlum, but police said late yesterday that they believed he also came from Kansas City.

The theory regarded as most acceptable by the St. Paul police was that the three men had been killed as the result of a war among the gangsters seeking control over racketeering and booze running activities in the Minnesota territory.

This led the Chicago authorities to consider the possibility that George (Bugs) Moran, Chicago gang leader, reported to have been killed by order of Scarface Al Capone and who is said to have been establishing himself in criminal activities at St. Paul, may be involved in the triple killing.

Three Theories in St. Paul.

State investigators under Gen. W. F. Rhinow, head of the Minnesota bureau of criminal apprehension, were considering three other theories in addition to the gang war dispute, as follows: That the victims became involved in a dispute with confederates over division of the loot from the Willmar bank and were "put on the spot."

Reprisal for the slaying in Minneapolis last spring of Max Golden, Minneapolis bootlegger and gambler.

A dispute over slot machines or the division of racketeering territory.

Sheriff Claus A. Theorin, at Brainerd, Minn., yesterday made a fruitless search for Bugs Moran in the vicinity of Brainerd, where it had been reported the erstwhile Chicago gangster was making his new headquarters.

The most recent report was that Moran was at Woman Lake, 50 miles from Brainerd, in a region which for several years has been the summer home of many Chicagoans.

Start Inquiry Into Vallo Killing.

The inquiry into the killing of Vallo was conducted by Coroner Bundeisen at the county morgue. The principal witness was Miss Vera Wallace, blonde, blue-eyed sweet heart of the dead gangster, who was with Vallo when two men emptied shotguns at him.

She testified that she and Vallo, whom she was engaged to marry, had started out to see an unidentified man in Franklin Park, and had stopped at a cafe in Niles Center owned by Charles Landerer. Vallo got out of the car, saying he intended to telephone the man at Franklin Park again.

"He stayed in there about 15 minutes," the young woman testified. "Then he came out and said he had to wait for a fellow, and he told me to come in and have a sandwich."

"I had just got out of the car when

$55,725 IN REWARDS.

Rewards totaling $55,725 are offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the slayer of Alfred Lingie. Of the $25,000 reward offered by The Tribune, $10,000 will be paid to any person who will give confidential information identifying the slayer of Lingie. All information should be sent to the headquarters established by State's Attorney Swanson in room 503 Temple building, 77 West Washington street. Telephone State 5728.

I noticed two men jump out of the weeds beside the building and point shotguns at Danny. Before he could pull his gun they had fired several times at him and he fell to the ground.

The girl said she had never known of Vallo's criminal and gang activities. She thought he was a contractor, she said. She knew of no threats against him, and did not know whom Vallo called on the telephone.

Trace Franklin Park Call.

On the theory that the Franklin Park call might have great significance and that the person with whom Vallo talked might have informed him slayers, the police investigated and learned that the call had been made by Vallo from the cafe to Franklin Park 385. The police found this telephone to be in a house on Emerson street, in the outskirts of Franklin Park. Anton Bauer, occupant of the house, who appeared to be an Italian despite his name, denied he knew Vallo, and denied that he talked with Vallo Wednesday night.

Another telephone number called from the Landerer cafe was found to be Keystone 6302. This number is that of Emil Koch, 3137 Bernard street, who was found to be a brother-in-law of Landerer. This call was not made by Vallo, but by Landerer's wife, it was explained.

Landerer, his wife, and Joseph Eckl, 4343 North Sacramento avenue, a waiter in the cafe, were in an automobile driving to the inquest yesterday when at Crawford avenue and Peterson road their car collided with another automobile driven by Harry Lewis, 4189 North Clarendon avenue. Eckl was severely injured, and the other were bruised. Because of the accident Coroner Bundeisen postponed the Vallo inquest indefinitely.

Two Shot in Cafe.

Two men, Sam Messine and Sam Paulino, believed to be minor hoodlums of the Capone gang, were shot yesterday in the Pleasure Inn, 505 East 21st street. James Pleasure, Negro proprietor of the place, told Lieut. Harry Smele that the two men were shot accidentally as the three men grappled for a revolver. Pleasure said the men had threatened after he refused to buy liquor from them.

Pleasure was released by the police, who accepted his story as true. The wounded men were charged with attempted robbery, and will be taken to court after they are discharged from the Bridewell hospital.

Capt. George O'Connor and his vice and gambling squad conducted a series of raids on loop cigar stores late yesterday afternoon.

Blow Up Cleveland Home.

Cleveland, O., Aug. 15.—(AP)—The home of Raymond Porello, identified as one of the five Porello brothers, who have controlled the corn sugar industry in Cleveland, was blown to pieces by a terrific bomb explosion early today. Police were unable at once to determine whether any of the Porello family, which includes four children, was in the house.

In the last few weeks two of the Porello brothers have been slain in gang feuds and police have expressed the opinion the brothers all were marked for death.

JOYCE NAMES ABBOTT

State Senator John T. Joyce was reported to have told the grand jury yesterday that Tommy Abbott, who was arrested as a witness in the Rockford gang murder last night, was one of the "machine gun brigade" of last primary day. Senator Joyce was called before the grand jury to explain statements he made before County Judge Jarecki that election terrorists with a machine gun and a state's attorney's banner on their car invaded his precinct at the April primary. Coming from the grand jury room Senator Joyce said he had been directed not to reveal his testimony. He was directed to return on Monday and give the names of witnesses who would corroborate his story.

COST OF CRIME YEARLY PLACED AT 7½ BILLIONS

Double Income Tax Bill,
Surety Man Says.

New York, Aug. 14.—(Special.)—The cost of crime and fraudulent financial transactions in the United States is more than 7½ billion dollars annually, according to Dr. Benjamin F. Battin, resident vice president of the National Surety company, who addressed the weekly meeting of the New York Exchange club today.

"This means that the individual citizen contributes involuntarily to the cost of crime probably twice as much as he pays for federal income tax," Dr. Battin said. "He must pay in the higher cost of fuel, rent, food, clothing, amusements, and everything for which he makes outlay. He must pay a larger item to the cost of financial crime than he pays out for his sport or hobby, for his church or philanthropy."

Bankruptcy Loss Heavy.

Citing figures compiled by the National Surety company from investigations of thousands of fraudulent transactions annually, Dr. Battin asserted that the average citizen suffered most financially from fraudulent bankruptcy and concealment of assets in insolvency. This cost he put at 750 millions each year. In other phases of crime encountered Dr. Battin quoted annual losses, as follows:

Embezzlement, 1 billion, 200 million; burglary and similar crimes, 200 million; forgery, 175 to 200 million; fraudulent claims for insurance, surety and casualty, 200 million; fraud in real estate, 100 million; unfair merchandise, partially from fraud in advertising, 500 million; and worthless stocks and bonds, 500 million.

Narcotics Bill a Billion.

Dr. Battin declared that many sources of financial fraud tended to swell the total of the statistics he presented and to make the cost of crime as estimated a minimum figure. For example, he said, "the country's leading expert on the subject of drugs and narcotics estimates that the amount of money spent surreptitiously for morphine, cocaine, heroin, and other forbidden drugs amounts to about 1 billion dollars a year."

ELEVEN SEIZED AT "COUNTRY CLUB" FREE ON BONDS

Eleven men seized Wednesday night in a raid on the Keystone Country club, an alleged gambling establishment on Thatcher road near North avenue, were released on bail yesterday. They are to be arraigned Aug. 21 before Police Magistrate William Ward at Morton Grove. Albert Goodell, who had some affiliation with the Bugs Moran gang in the operation of the Fairview Kennel club, was charged with being the keeper of a gambling house.

Others arrested by Lieut. William Blau of the state's attorney's office identified themselves as Raymond Cliff, 45, 1730 North 79th avenue, River Grove, a salesman; Joseph Bailey, 31, of 4621 Sheridan road, a clerk; Dave Barker, 25, of the Sheridan Plaza hotel, a salesman; Raymond Burrier, 48, of the Sheridan Plaza hotel, a salesman; Daniel McLory, 24, of 221 North Central avenue, laborer; H. C. Hughes, 5500 Lake Park avenue. The others arrested were employees of the club.

Dixie Cow Wrecks Train;

Engine Upsets; 2 Killed

Columbia, S. C., Aug. 14.—(AP)—Two trainmen were believed killed and two others were badly shaken up tonight when a Southern railway passenger train hit a cow and left the rails between Old Town and Chappells, 60 miles from here.

The engine turned over and James G. Price, engineer, and Jeff E. Hollander, fireman, both of Columbia, believed buried under it. Wrecking crews were trying to find them.

FEAR FOR SAFETY OF WITNESS; SEARCH FOR GUNS IN COURTROOM

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 14.—(Special.)—As a prelude to the appearance on the witness stand of Joseph (Legs) Laman, convicted kidnaper, in the trial of Harry Hallisey and Benny Rubenstein, his pals, for the abduction of Reuben J. Cohen, Judge W. McKay Skillman today excused the jury and ordered all spectators to leave the courtroom and to be searched for weapons on their return. Detectives in charge of the case feared an attempt might be made to kill Laman.

Laman is serving a 30 to 40 year sentence for assisting in the kidnapping of Fred Begeman, a Wyandotte bootlegger. Laman also testified that he was convicted of an extortion charge as a result of the kidnapping of David Cass, son of a wealthy Detroit. Cass subsequently was slain when the ransom money was not paid.

PONDERS PLEA TO KEEP CITY JOBS FOR CHICAGOANS

An appeal to Mayor Thompson to use his influence with the city department heads to have residents of Chicago given preference for employment in any construction work undertaken by the city was under consideration yesterday by Corporation Counsel Etzelson. The proposal was advanced recently to the mayor by Arthur M. Millard, president and manager of the Masonic Employment bureau of the Chicago district.

"Chicago is faced with a serious situation with respect to its citizens of the stable and dependable sort," said Mr. Millard. "Outsiders, influenced by optimistic reports about conditions in this city, have been coming here to find work."

"Employment of out of town persons by Chicago employers is a detriment to business here due to the fact that their earnings are usually sent back to other points which receive the benefit of disbursement of earnings made here."

120 Million Dollar Issue

of Treasury Bills Sold

Washington, D. C., Aug. 14.—(AP)—Secretary Mellon announced tonight an issue of 120 million dollars in treasury bills had been sold at an average price of 99.504, equivalent to an average rate of 1.96 per cent on a bank discount basis.

The bills were dated Aug. 18, 1930, and mature Nov. 17, 1930. Applications were received for $297,162,000.

JURY SELECTED IN DETROIT FOR CRIME INQUIRY

Murder of Radio Man and 14 Others on Docket.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 14.—(P)—Twenty-three persons whose occupations range from housewife to state senator were drawn today for service on the grand jury which will investigate Detroit crime conditions.

Next Monday the jury will convene under the active leadership of Attorney General Wilbur M. Brucker and Prosecutor James E. Chenot to take up the slaying of Jerry Buckley, radio political commentator, by three gunmen July 23, and such other recent killings and lesser crimes as have a bearing on the general situation.

Post, Bankers on Panel.

The 23 grand jurors represent a fair cross section of the county and city life. The list includes bankers, manufacturers, real estate operators, a minister, a newspaper poet, a state senator, two township officials, a funeral director, the owner of a radio broadcasting station, and an engineer. There are three women on the jury, one of whom is the wife of Judge Edward J. Jeffries, a candidate for the Republican nomination for governor.

When the grand jury assembles next Monday it will find itself faced with fifteen instead of fourteen gangster killings, which will demand investigation. The fifteenth occurred last night, when an unidentified gunman shot and killed Cicero Mangiapani, believed to have been a down river liquor operator.

Slain in Automobile.

Mangiapani was slain as he and the gunman drove about Grosse Pointe in the former's automobile. The police have been unable definitely to link the victim with any local gang. They suspect he was connected with some group in Brooklyn, N. Y.

In New York, Michigan, and Detroit authorities armed with requisition papers and a murder warrant appeared to press the state's demand for the removal here of Ted Pizzino, alleged "trigger man" in the Buckley killing.

Gov. Fred W. Green had announced he would intercede personally with Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York if Detroit officers encountered any difficulty in extraditing Pizzino.

UNIFORM LAW GROUP PASSES DIVORCE PLAN

6 State Representatives Decline to Vote.

A uniform divorce jurisdiction act was recommended to the states and territories yesterday by the national conference of commissioners on uniform state laws in session at the Stevens hotel.

Mississippi was the only state which voted against the act, while six states responded as "present but not voting." They were Connecticut, Georgia, Idaho, Missouri, New Jersey, and New York. Nevada's commissioner did not vote. The motion was declared carried by the vote of 32 states. It will be presented to the American Bar association for approval next week.

Act Limited to Jurisdiction.

As finally amended and adopted the divorce act touches only the question of jurisdiction, as it was felt that it would be impossible to get the states together on the question of grounds for divorce. Nevada now recognizes fourteen causes, while New York has only two. This act, if adopted, would make a residence period of a year necessary before bringing action, thus enabling Nevada to hold its place as a divorce colony only by the strength of its position in the matter of legal causes.

It is provided in the act that full faith and credit shall be given in one state to a decree of divorce from the courts of another state, thus preventing the invalidation of divorces in states other than the one in which they were granted.

Pistol Law Up Today.

The act regulating the carrying of pistols was amended and will be made a special order of business this afternoon.

The uniform criminal extradition act was reported upon by Henry U. Buns of Birmingham, Ala., president of the American Bar association, who moved that it go to a special committee for further consideration of amendments. This action was taken.

This act has already been passed in six states but has developed opposition in others, notably New York, where it was passed by the legislature but vetoed by the governor.

Digs Own Grave, Jumps Into It and Kills Himself

Ottawa Beach, Mich., Aug. 14.—(AP)—Half buried in a rough grave he apparently had dug himself, the body of John L. Dean, 22, student at the Michigan Institute of Mining and Technology at Houghton, was found on top of a hill near here today. The body was buried from the waist down and there was a bullet wound in the head. A revolver lay nearby. Coroner Gilbert Vandewater returned a verdict of suicide, expressing the opinion the student had, in effect, dug his own grave and buried himself the best he could before taking his life.

Dean, in poor health, had been camping here.

Massacre Anniversary Observed

Miss Ethel Hooper with model of old Fort Dearborn blockhouse made from the original fort, which was evacuated Aug. 15, 1812, by its garrison, which was massacred by hostile Indians at what is now 18th street and Prairie avenue.

Will Drop Flowers

Ceremonies commemorating the 118th anniversary of the massacre of the garrison of Fort Dearborn will be held this morning at the south end of the Michigan avenue bridge under the auspices of the Chicago Association of Commerce and the Fort Dearborn post of the American Legion. The fort stood on the present site of the London Guarantee and Accident building at 360 North Michigan avenue.

The small garrison started on the long march to Fort Wayne at Detroit on Aug. 15, 1812, after news of the declaration of war between the United States and England had reached the fort. They had proceeded as far as what is now 18th street and Prairie avenue when a band of Indians charged from behind the sand dunes, killing 38 men, 2 women and 12 children.

Today roses will be strewn along the path taken by the garrison by an army plane and a huge floral piece will be placed in front of the Guarantee building by Joan Muran, 3 1/2 year old orphan of St. Vincent's orphanage, who has been selected as Miss Chicago to commemorate the children who were slain. A color guard of the Legion post will be stationed at the bridge in the uniforms of 1812. A proclamation was issued by Mayor Thompson setting aside today as Fort Dearborn day.

RED PLANE SHOT DOWN AFTER GUN DUEL IN ESTHONIA

Crashes in Russia When Hit in Border Raid.

BY DONALD DAY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIGA, Latvia, Aug. 14.—A Russian military plane flying above Estonian territory was shot down yesterday after a 20 minute duel with Estonian border guards stationed at the frontier near Narva. The airplane replied to warning shots from border guards with bursts of machine gun fire, which the Estonians returned. They scored a hit and the plane wobbled back across the frontier and crashed about one and a quarter miles inside soviet territory.

Estonian Foreign Minister M. Lattik protested energetically today to Soviet Minister Raskolnikov against the repeated flights of red planes above Estonia.

Revamp Army Plan.

A new mobilization law has been approved by the soviet peoples' commissars which, according to the Moscow Tass, puts Russia upon a complete military basis. The feature of the law is the exemption from military service of the agriculturist specialists, tractor mechanics, and members of the recently organized collective farms and workers employed in munition industries.

Every student, according to the decree, must take a military course along with his studies, and each person must know his place when war is declared.

Levy Wages of 10,000,000.

The Pravda mentions that during August every one of the 10,000,000 workers employed by soviet industry must contribute a day's wages to the government's fund to industrialize the country and hereafter a similar compulsory donation will be exacted every six months.

The law also regulates recruiting for the red army, but the army of the Gay Pay Out, or Cheka political police, is exempted.

Youth Shot to Death as He Examines Pistol

Joseph Partyska, 20 years old, 1416 Superior street, was killed last night when shot through the head in the accidental discharge of a pistol he was examining. The revolver belonged to Joseph Wajda, 1421 Superior street, at whose home Partyska was visiting.

Wolfe Promises to Act for Removal of Railway Tracks

Commissioner of Public Works Wolfe yesterday promised the owners of 342 pieces of real estate in the loop terminal district and the representatives of south side civic organizations that he will exercise the power of his office to remove the tracks of the Chicago and Western Indiana railroad from Plymouth court, Taylor street, and two alleys adjacent to the Dearborn street terminal. The railroad was given notice by Mr. Wolfe on Aug. 11 to tear up its tracks on those streets.

Charges were made in the conference held in Mr. Wolfe's office that the railroad's tactics are retarding improvements in the Tenth ward and the south terminal district. It was asserted that the maintenance of its tracks in the two streets imposes an obstacle to the city's plan to open a number of loop streets through to the south and west sides of the city.

Sees Street Blocking.

"That any railroad should presume to have the right to use our city streets without a franchise just because they claim to haul people and carry mail over them, it seems to us is taking a lot for granted," said Elmer Rich, president of the South Central association. "We believe their action is just another move to block the building of the much needed new terminals for another 10 or 15 years, and we think the time has come for the people to end that apparent 'Chicago be damned' policy of certain railroads."

"We feel the proposed building (at 7 West Polk street) of the Chicago and Western Indiana and the continued use of the streets and alleys in question is merely a part of a well defined plan to block indefinitely the opening of the streets through the terminal area."

Attacks Building Permit.

The issuance of a permit to the railroad on July 2 to construct a freight house on West Polk street was held by Mr. Dudley to interfere with the city's plans.

Among those at the conference were Newton C. Farr, president of the Chicago Real Estate board; Joseph K. Brittain, chairman of the terminal committee of the Chicago Association of Commerce; Graham Aldis of Aldis & Co.; Alfred Cowles, and Ald. William A. Rowan [10th]. Ald. Rowan said the railroad is occupying 31 streets and alleys in the 10th ward illegally and stated that the road has scheduled some of its real estate holdings as "right of way," thus avoiding the payment of a fair tax on it.

COURT UPHOLDS BOND SALE UNDER STRAWN RELIEF

Validity of the relief bills passed at the recent special session of the legislature authorizing the issuance of $1,000,000 in bonds for the creation of working cash funds for the county, city, and school board was upheld yesterday by Circuit Judge Rush. The bills had been attacked as unconstitutional in three suits to enjoin the bond sale.

The bills were dismissed by Judge Rush for want of equity. Attorney Allan J. Carter, representing Mrs. Erminnie Mathews, who brought the suits as a taxpayer, took an appeal to the supreme court, where arguments will be heard at the October term. The bills provided for the issuance of bonds without referendum as part of the plan worked out by the citizens' committee headed by Silas H. Strawn to straighten out the tangled financial conditions of the local governments.

Clothing Prices Down Now —Chicago Men Benefit!

Recent reductions in commodity prices have been followed by prompt cuts in the prices at which Chicago stores are offering goods to their customers. This was indicated by a survey conducted by representatives of the Chicago Tribune who visited a number of men's clothing and department stores yesterday. The merchants offered abundant illustrations to establish that Chicago consumers now have the benefit of the lowest level of retail prices in many years.

The belief is held by a number of the merchandising experts that the present low level of retail prices is made possible because manufacturers were able to purchase raw materials in some cases below the cost of making them. The merchants pointed out that the costs of the raw materials cannot long remain below the costs of producing them, and that higher raw material prices, and therefore higher wholesale and retail prices, lie ahead.

FLYING NOTABLES TO LEAD AIR RACE PARADE IN LOOP

Women to Start Derby
Next Sunday.

BY ROBERT WOOD.

An inaugural parade, led by a host of flying celebrities and escorted over head by squadrons of army, navy and marine corps planes, will move down Michigan avenue and through the loop next Friday noon to herald the opening of the 1930 national air races at Curtiss airport on Aug. 23.

Plans for the parade were announced yesterday by E. W. Hogle of the Chicago chapter of the National Aeronautical association, which is lining up a score of marching groups, bands and cavalry units to take part. The civil and military planes will comprise the vanguard of ships arriving the day before the opening of the national flying classic.

Includes Many Notables.
Among the notables who will ride in the parade are Capt. Frank Hawks, who yesterday rested from the rigors of his half-day hop across the continent; Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker, world war ace; Lieut. James Doolittle, former army ace; Lieut. Al Williams, now en route to New York accompanied by the foremost European stunt flyer, and Senator Hiram Bingham, president of the National Aeronautical association.

The parade is to be reviewed by Maj. Gen. James E. Fehet, chief of the army air corps; Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, chief of the navy bureau of aeronautics; Col. Thomas Turner, chief of the marine air corps, and David S. Ingalls, assistant secretary of the navy.

The procession will start at 11:30 a. m. from Michigan avenue and Monroe street, proceeding north on Michigan avenue to Wacker drive, west to State street, south on State street to Jackson boulevard, west to La Salle street and north to Wacker drive. Various foreign groups are planning to take part.

Days Honor Foreign Flyers.
Foreign flyers taking part in the air races will be honored by five special days which have been designated by the race committee for national groups. The special days are: German day, Aug. 25; French day, Aug. 26; British day, Aug. 27; Polish day, Aug. 28, and Italian day, Aug. 29. Aug. 31 will be all-nations day.

Lieut. Williams and the air races of Europe accompanying him will arrive at New York tomorrow on the Leviathan. Among the famous flyers, all of whom are bringing their own planes, are Flight Lieutenant R. L. R. Atcherley of the British Schneider cup team; Marshal Pietro Colombo, leader of Italy's first pursuit group; Marcel Doret, the French army's aerobatic champion, and Frederick Loose, leading German pilot. New York has arranged an official welcome.

Letter received by Mrs. Winifred Krueger, 4121 Sheridan road, Chicago.

"I am inclosing an envelope sent by my mother from my home, Rotherham, England." Mrs. Krueger writes. "We are six miles from Sheffield, the English steel and silver center. "Rotherham and round about is noted for its extensive coal mines. Yorkshire coal is shipped mostly to the continent. Besides being an industrial center, Rotherham also has several historical landmarks. Just outside the town, at a village called Whistons, one can still see the stocks, an old form of punishment for public offenders. "Also located there are the ruins of an abbey built in the fourteenth century, which, with many other abbeys and Catholic churches, was brought to ruin by Henry VIII.

not get under way until six days later. Maj. R. W. Schroeder, contest director of the races, will fire the opening gun for the meet Sunday evening. The echo of the shot will be carried over a radio network and the long distance signal will start the women's Pacific Derby from Long Beach, Cal.

Dozen Girls Seek Prizes.
A dozen girl flyers will be lined up there waiting for the sound of the gun fired in Chicago to start on their 2,365 mile race to Chicago for the $22,000 in prize money. The tiny Popjoy Phantom No. 1, a plane weighing only 235 pounds, which has been entered in 131 speed events including the free for all, attracted large crowds at the field yesterday. The plane, only 12 feet in length, is powered by a 72 horsepower engine.

In an effort to avoid unnecessary noise from airplane motors which was the source of complaint from hospital patients during the recent army maneuvers over the city, officials of the race committee yesterday began the preparation of maps showing the location of hospitals. These will be distributed among pilots with the request that they avoid flying in groups over the designated areas.

Charge Still Killed Head of Family; Asks $75,000

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 14.—(Special.)—Mrs. Jennie Escandon and her four daughters, Ruth, Hortense, Jennie and Lizzie, ages ranging from 14 to 8, today filed suit against Lute and Pete Brommer, father and son. They demand $75,000 damages for the death of Ramon Escandon last April 14, as well as an explosion of the Brommer's still on a dairy ranch near Downey killed Escandon.

"My husband and I went over there last year for our honeymoon trip. Built on a hill, overlooking the town, is a fort once held by Oliver Cromwell, but now an observatory called Boston Castle. And last, but not least, the good old beer and ale to which my husband took a great liking while we were home."

Rotherham is a market town and municipal borough in the Rotherham parliamentary division of the West Riding of Yorkshire. The town has iron, brass and steel works, railway wagon works, potteries, glass works, and sawmills.

BAIL IS $25,000 FOR MAN WHOM GIRLS ACCUSED

William Suchier Jr., 23 years old, of 824 Galt avenue, son of a loop realty dealer, was held to the grand jury yesterday on two charges of assault with intent to rape by Municipal Judge John H. Lyle. Bonds were fixed at $25,000, including a $5,000 bond added for a third charge, that of contributing to the delinquency of a minor.

The complainants against Suchier are Leona Blumenthal, 17 years old, an entertainer in the Club Metropole, living at 4241 Kenmore avenue, and Betty Perkins, 19 years old, of 2045 Irving Park boulevard, a former Lake View High school student.

Attorney Lawrence Jacobs, representing Suchier, obtained a jury trial on the third charge. Suchier and Miss Perkins were arrested last Sunday night as they were seated in his car at Racine avenue and Kinzie street. She told Judge Lyle she was questioned for three hours by Racine avenue police, while Suchier was released shortly after their arrival at the station when an unidentified woman called for him. A Mary Doe warrant was issued for the woman, who, Suchier said, was a professional bonds-woman.

U. S. MAY GRANT CHICAGO MORE LAKE DIVERSION

Harley Expected to Heed Emmerson's Plea.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.] Washington, D. C., Aug. 14.—(Special.)—There were strong indications tonight that Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley will grant the request of Illinois river and Mississippi valley residents for a temporary increase in the flow of water from Lake Michigan through the Chicago sanitary district canal.

Gov. Louis L. Emmerson of Illinois and Cleveland A. Newton, counsel for the Mississippi Valley association urged the diversion increase in the interests of navigation and health during a conference today with Secretary Hurley and war department engineers. After the conference Secretary Hurley said he had asked the judge advocate's office for an opinion as to whether the diversion could be increased temporarily without placing the war department in contempt of the Supreme court decision of last January ruling that diversion of water for sanitary purposes alone was illegal. It was indicated the flow would be increased if legal barriers could be surmounted.

War department officials were of the opinion tonight that it would be possible to permit a temporary increase for navigation purposes, although the court decision might forbid such a step for sanitary reasons. Maj. Gen. Lytle Brown, chief of engineers, stated in answer to questions that he did not believe lake levels would be damaged by a temporary increase of a few thousand feet in the diversion from Lake Michigan, pending increased rain fall.

In appealing for an increased diversion, Gov. Emmerson advised Mr. Hurley that navigation on the upper Illinois river was seriously handicapped by the low water and that the health of Illinois river valley residents had been jeopardized by stagnant waters resulting from the lack of rain. Mr. Newton pointed out that the long drought had injured barge transportation on the upper Mississippi river and that low water would stop all freight traffic on the Illinois river above Peoria.

Agree on Waterway Work.

During the Hurley-Emmerson conference a tentative agreement for early resumption of work on the Illinois waterway was reached. On leaving the war department, Mr. Emmerson said that work on either the bridges or the waterway itself would begin shortly. He declined to go into details regarding just what work is planned for the immediate future. Discussing his conference with Gov. Emmerson over ways and means of financing work this year on the Illinois waterway, Mr. Hurley said that

INCREASE DIVERSION IN SANITARY CANAL; HEALTH HAZARD SEEN

Believing that low water in the lower reaches of the drainage system in the Illinois and Mississippi rivers constitutes a grave health hazard, Edward J. Kelly, chief engineer of the sanitary district, acting under the orders of President Howard Elmore, yesterday ordered lake diversion through the sanitary canal increased from 6,500 cubic feet per second to 12,000 cubic feet per second.

Under the United States Supreme court ruling the sanitary district cut the flow from 8,500 cubic feet to 6,500 cubic feet per second on July 2. The court ruling still holds and the present increased flow is in the nature of an emergency relief. It was pointed out that the court ruling demands an average flow so that a later cut in diversion will be necessary to average the present increase.

The governor and himself had arrived at what he believed was an amicable solution of the situation.

"The secretary feels," the war department announced, "that the governor is doing everything in his power to bring about a settlement of the situation that will be satisfactory to all concerned and that the governor and himself had arrived at an understanding under which it is believed work on the Illinois waterway can be started."

Work May Start at Once.

It is considered highly probable that the state will proceed at once to build the bridges that must be erected over the waterway. It is understood that Gov. Emmerson informed Mr. Hurley that all the money remaining in the state waterway fund would be needed for construction of bridges and other obligations. An audit of the state funds is to be made, however, to see if it will be possible to utilize some of this money for actual waterway construction operations.

In his letter of March 30, 1930, to the secretary of war, Gov. Emmerson estimated there would be available on July 1, 1930, a balance of $4,142,000 in the waterways fund.

Police Hunt for Clews in Mystery Slaying on Ship

Police of the Chicago avenue station last night were called to investigate a mysterious murder committed apparently upon a lake freighter, Commerce of Chicago, now anchored in the river off North State street. Frank Stecker, 60 years old, a roundabout and deckhand, was found in the engine room with a bullet in his heart. William White, another deckhand, stumbled over the body and notified the police.

SUBWAY PLANS STILL IN AIR AS LAWYERS ARGUE

Differ on Legality of the Present Procedure.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

The legality of the procedure on subway plans was still hanging in the air yesterday.

Assistant Corporation Counsel Carl J. Appell and Samuel Golian have written an opinion saying that the appointment of the subway engineers was by an illegal process.

This view has been transmitted by Corporation Counsel Ettelson to Attorneys Walter L. Fisher and Allan T. Gilbert with a request for their written opinion on the same subject. They hold that the procedure is legal.

Ettelson to Make Decision.

Neither opinion is available for the public. Mr. Ettelson will reach his decision on the law after he has read the Fisher-Gilbert opinion.

In the meantime the engineers are not being paid, bills are held up, and there is hesitancy in enlarging the force, which is necessary if the preparation of the subway plans is to be expedited.

Forty-five days have passed since the indeterminate franchise was approved by the electorate by a ratio of 5% to 1. Immediately after that vote on July 1 city and company officials freely interpreted it as a request for transportation facilities as soon as they could practically be obtained.

Now Differ in Opinions.

Now after a month and a half one set of lawyers says that the subway planning has started illegally and another pair say it is legal.

"If they do not harmonize their views soon the local transportation committee will be holding the bag," commented Ald. Joseph B. McDonough. "I do not suppose that it is possible to straighten out all the legal criticisms five lawyers can make of any council action, but I shall ask the city council to try it in this instance, unless the lawyers agree."

"I sincerely hope that every one concerned will aid in getting the subway under way. Both employment and transportation are needed urgently, and we should be going ahead at full speed."

Delay in Extension.

The companies are not making as much progress on extensions as the aldermen desire. The south side surface lines have asked permission to construct half a dozen extensions. The hearing was completed on two of them more than a week ago, yet there will be no decision on whether the lines may be built until Aug. 21.

The elevated company desires to construct a third track on the Garfield park branch. To widen its right of way it has purchased some property and has filed a condemnation suit to acquire other parcels. But the judges, like the Illinois Commerce commission, are on a vacation, and the condemnation suit has been put off to Sept. 21.

Fishy Taste

Scientific wonders never cease—in fact they have only just commenced. An ingenious new mechanism has been invented which shows how ripe a peach is.

Still another clever invention successfully extracts the flesh, bone, strength and energy increasing elements from pure vitamin-tested Norwegian cod liver oil and puts them into sugar-coated tablets.

They are called McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Extract Tablets—all druggists have them for sale—and there isn't a man, woman or child with a thin, weak body or rundown system who can't get at least the same benefit from McCoy's as from the finest cod liver oil. The only thing missing is the fishy taste, which nobody likes.

Mrs. Henry H. Manchester of Maywood, N. J., who says that most children hate liquid medicine but that it is easy to give them tablets, finds McCoy's wonderfully beneficial for promptly increasing the weight and strength of her little son. Is it any wonder when you consider that every last weight and strength building element found in cod liver oil is present in McCoy's in a form that the most delicate stomach easily tolerates?

McCoy's have been tested and approved by the Good Housekeeping Bureau of Food, Sanitation and Health. And put them—40 tablets, 60 cents. For sale at all Walgreens or Economical Drug Stores.

Coal Heat Saved H. S. White $435.95 in 5 years

You want facts, not fast talking about the cost of fuels other than coal.

H. S. White burns a better than average grade of coal in his 10-room house at 1833 Farwell Avenue. He uses 11 tons a year and has paid an average of $13 a ton for it. His fuel bills have been $143 a year plus $5 for kindling.

To get the same number of heat units from the fuel next in cost he would have to pay $235.19 a year, which includes a conservative figure for depreciation on a burner, current costs, and service expense.

An equal number of heat units from the third fuel would cost $297 a year, plus $7.50 for installation and $60 for rental on the burner. In five years, he has saved $435.95 over the cost of the second fuel and $1082.50 over the third.

Coal Heat can be automatic

Besides the savings from coal heat, you get by far the evenest, quietest, safest heat you could buy at any price. And heat that can be automatic as well. All it requires is the addition of a thermostatic control. Any heating plant can be equipped with one at a very moderate cost.

Let a member of the Chicago Coal Merchants Association go over the means of making coal heat automatic heat, with you. Let him figure how much coal heat saves you. He assures this saving by honest grading and weighing. The Association guarantees that every ton delivered to you by any member will contain a full 2000 pounds.

COAL HEAT GIVES MORE B. T. U.'s. PER DOLLAR

In burning one dollar's worth of fuel A (coal) you get 1,740,012 B.T.U.'s. (Best value)
In burning one dollar's worth of fuel B you get 773,396 B.T.U.'s. (Best value)
In burning one dollar's worth of fuel C you get 463,737 B.T.U.'s. (Best value)

GEN. SUMMERALL PRAISES SHOWING AT GUARD REVIEW

Lauds Sacrifice of War
Trained Officers.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
Camp Grant, Ill., Aug. 14.—[Special.]—The National Guard as an instrument of national defense and as a training school for American citizens was praised today by high ranking army officers and civilians as the annual encampment of the 22d division, Illinois National Guard, drew to a close with the review of 10,000 troops.

Gen. Charles P. Summerall, chief of staff of the United States army, paid tribute to the Illinois division after he had reviewed the guardsmen.

"I can now see the sun set upon my active service with a sense of stability and comfort," he said. "This superb demonstration of the training and discipline of Illinois troops has impressed us all. The present division has inherited the morale and spirit of the division which bore itself so well abroad during the world war."

Praises Veteran Officers.
"Many of the officers here participated in that war and now are lending their experience to the guard at a sacrifice of time and labor. These officers represent the spirit of the people of this state, and it is the reason why you are able to have such an organization. The National Guard stands today as the first line of national defense with such small elements of the regular army as may be available. The guard stands shoulder to shoulder with the regular army, and the country possesses a stout bulwark of protection."

Praises Citizenship Value.
"Looking at it from the most selfish point of view," he declared, "The guard should help the National Guard. I don't know of any other way of making good citizens than by having them serve in the guard."

Former Senator James Hamilton Lewis declared that at no time in the history of the country was a large, trained military force more needed for national safety.

"We cannot be blind to the menace which rears its head in Asia," he said. "With Russia, China, and other Asiatic countries obtaining a daily schooling in war, the time must come when they stretch out their hands across the sea. Alaska with its millions in wealth, lies within the clutches of Russia. The Philippines are in similar peril."

Eleven Generals in Stand.
"Let us have such a systematic organization as this in constant readiness so that the world may be warned that we are not asleep."

wealth lies within the clutches of Russia. The Philippines are in similar peril."

WIDOW, 61, SEIZED IN NEW RUM RAID,
"NOT ASHAMED"

(Picture on back page.)
"What's the matter, mother?" asked a deputy marshal as he took the fingerprints of an elderly widow in the federal building yesterday.

"I'm a-tellin' you," she replied, eying him sternly. "I ain't done a thing but violate a law which I don't believe in and which never should have been made a law. I may go to jail but I'm not ashamed of anything."

Mrs. Cordelia Hurn, 61 years old, 224 West Marquette road, who gave her name as Mary Hurn when she was arrested on Monday in Michigan City for transporting liquor in an ancient car, yesterday was held to the grand jury here by United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker on charges of possessing liquor and maintaining a nuisance.

Mrs. Hurn was released by the Michigan City police on Wednesday on a bond of $500. That night Chicago police raided a garage in the rear of the bungalow she rents and arrested her. They seized 10 five gallon cans of alcohol, eight cans, each containing 12 pints of liquor labeled as Horseshoe bourbon, three one gallon bottles of alcohol, two one-half gallon bottles of colored alcohol, and one pint of gin flavoring. An underground vault was found at the rear of the garage.

Mrs. Hurn and John Bedons, 45 years old, who was sleeping on the porch when the raiding party called, and who was arrested with her, were released on bonds of $1,000 each. Mrs. Hurn first told police the liquor was "diagonas" but later said that she would take the blame rather than see "diagonas" go to jail. "I helped send him to a school of embalming," she said proudly, "and he's a graduate now."

FIND BISHOP GUILTY OF CONSPIRING TO VIOLATE DRY LAWS

New York, Aug. 14.—[Special.]—Charles Mirzeta, former bishop of the Czechoslovakian orthodox Old Catholic church, and six others were convicted of conspiracy to violate the prohibition law today by a jury in federal court. The ecclesiastic was accused of using his privilege of withdrawing sacramental wine to obtain 40,000 gallons of it, instead of twenty-five or thirty, which would have sufficed for sacramental purposes. He was also accused of selling some of the wine to dealers at $1 a gallon.

During the trial many priests testified that they had signed withdrawal forms for wine which they never received, and it was shown that churches which used from 25 to 50 gallons a year in the administration of sacraments were credited with withdrawing from three to five thousand gallons a year each.

Sentence will be passed tomorrow. The maximum penalty is two years' imprisonment, $5,000 fine, or both.

HERRICK PROVES TALE IN PART, BUT IS HELD TO TRIAL

Baltimore, Md., Aug. 14.—[Special.]—Manuel Herrick, former Oklahoma congressman, acted as his own attorney today at a hearing growing out of his arrest last week while working at a still in St. Mary's county, Maryland, as a $15 a week handy man.

Herrick cross-examined witnesses, making frequent side comments, but, despite his attempt to prove he was at the still for the purpose of obtaining evidence for the prohibition department at Washington, he was held for a federal district court trial under $1,500 bond.

Herrick drew from John P. Moore, senior clerk at the prohibition bureau at Washington, an admission Moore had promised he would "attempt to get compensation" for any evidence Herrick might report.

Moore said, however, he refused Herrick a regular job with the department and warned him he would be collecting evidence at his own risk.

CRIMINAL COURT.
Robert E. Hinton sentenced to one to ten years in the Joliet penitentiary for larceny by Judge Harry B. Miller.

A jury in Judge Daniel P. Trude's Criminal court yesterday found Leonard Shadlow, a Negro under sentence of death for the murder of Martin French, a bank guard, during a robbery, to be sane and Judge Trude thereupon ordered Shadlow to be electrocuted on Aug. 22. Lafon Fisher, also colored, who was found guilty of French's murder with Shadlow, and Leon Brown, was found sane last week and he also will die on Aug. 22. Brown will have a hearing on his sanity within the next week and if found sane he may be executed with the others.

Birmingham, Ala., Aug. 14.—[Special.]—Mrs. James K. Vardaman, 74, widow of the former governor and senator from Mississippi, died here yesterday, less than two months after the death of her husband.

U. S. DRY AGENTS DENOUNCED FOR "LAWLESS" ACTS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
Washington, D. C., Aug. 14.—[Special.]—Federal prohibition officers operating in the District of Columbia were denounced for employing "lawless practices of law enforcement" in the report of a survey made public today by an investigation committee of the Washington Board of Trade.

An exhaustive examination of police records, grand jury reports, the courts, and the United States attorney's office cleared the Washington police of any illegal practices, but exposed the government's dry agents, according to the report issued by John Lewis Smith, chairman.

Use of Informers Attacked.
"Since the enactment of the 18th amendment, certain lawless conduct of law enforcement officers of the federal government has prevailed in this district," the report stated. "One of the most heinous practices was the employment by the federal prohibition agents of disreputable persons as stool pigeons and informers for the making of cases."

"The condition became so notorious that several of the informers were indicted for perjury, and in other instances cases were called for trial and the informers were found to be in jail, having been convicted of other crimes. The condition became so acute that the United States attorney's office was forced to refuse to prosecute any cases based upon evidence of these stool pigeons or informers."

Charge Liquor Disappears.
"In other cases the courts were compelled to suppress the evidence because of the unlawful entry and seizure by federal agents. In some defense cases, when the evidence, which consisted of the government to the defendant, it was found that prohibition officers were unable to produce it, having disappeared while in the possession of the prohibition department. Some of these practices have been discontinued because of the position which the United States attorney was forced to take."

Canadian Praises Prohibition.
University, Va., Aug. 14.—[Special.]—Advocates of prohibition rallied to its defense in the institute of public affairs today, while in another discussion restriction of Mexican immigration by the United States was held to be not only a right but a duty if economically desirable.

Mrs. D. Leigh Colvin, president of the New York state W. C. T. U., upheld the national dry law tonight in an address assailing its foes.

Her address followed closely upon another in which the eighteenth amendment was praised by a Canadian, Ben H. Spence of Washington, D. C., correspondent of the Toronto Daily Star, who at the same time condemned his own country's system of liquor control.

3 GROUPS TO ASK BOTH PARTIES TO TAKE WET PLANK

Three organizations opposed to prohibition joined forces yesterday to demand the insertion of an anti-prohibition plank in both the Republican and Democratic platforms at the state conventions to be held next week in Springfield. The Crusaders, the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform, and the Association Against the Eighteenth Amendment adopted a joint resolution which will be presented by their delegations.

"The events of the last eleven years pertaining to prohibition enforcement have confused the word 'prohibition' with true temperance. We believe that temperance is a moral issue and we go on record as supporting that issue."

"We believe that the several states should have absolute control, within their respective boundaries, of the manufacture and sale of alcoholic beverages."

"We recommend the repeal of the Volstead act and the Jones law and the submission to conventions of the people of a resolution for the repeal of the 18th amendment. We advocate the passage by the legislature of the state of Illinois of laws that will regulate the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors within its borders and prohibit the return of the saloon."

William H. Mitchell, Charles G. Cushing, Mrs. George Brennan, Mrs. Wirt Morton, and Col. Ira L. Reeves will appear before the Democratic convention. The Republican delegation will consist of J. Russell Forgan, Mrs. Leslie Wheeler, Mrs. Clifford Rodman, and Ralph Shaw.

Attorney General Carlstrom yesterday ruled that all three of the proposals involved in the Illinois prohibition referendum to be held at the November election must appear on a separate ballot from the candidates' ballot.

BUILDING CODE STIRS COMMENT OF ARCHITECTS

Magazine Scans Charges of Favoritism.

The failure to complete a revision of Chicago's "antiquated" building code in the three years that committee appointed by Building Commissioner Paschen have been working on it is noted in the July issue of the Monthly Bulletin of the Illinois Society of Architects. The bulletin also contains statements relating to rumors that favored architects and builders have had advance information of the changes proposed in the revised code.

"Over three years ago Building Commissioner Paschen announced that he had appointed a commission to rewrite the building code and it has been alleged that Chicago would, within a very few months, have a modern up to date code," the bulletin says.

Reports Are Discussed.

"It is reported that the committee having the work in charge is alleged to have completed its labors on certain chapters of the code and it has been alleged that the department of buildings has been permitting the construction of buildings designed in accordance with the requirements of these chapters of the proposed code, notwithstanding the fact that no formal action has ever been taken by the city council to make the suggested amendments a part of the code.

"So far as the editor is aware, no public announcement has been made of these suggested changes and it is therefore evident that the architects and builders who have been favored by receiving this advanced information have been able to do things that all architects, engineers, and builders are not aware of."

Paschen Makes Denial.

O. W. Rosenthal, general chairman of the Paschen committee, declared in answer to the Bulletin that it is impossible for one committee to be conversant with the work of other committees and that only one who knew the work of all the committees could design a building using the proposed changes. Commissioner Paschen denied that any of the proposed changes have been given out.

A few of the sections of the revised code are to be placed in the hands of a committee of the Illinois Society of Architects soon, according to Paschen, for a review and criticism of the work.

She has a sister, Mrs. Magha McKay, who is 97 years old. A brother, Stephen, died a few years ago at the age of 85 years. Only members of the family will observe the anniversary, her daughter, Mrs. C. B. Kinley; her son, George E. Marcy; a granddaughter, Mrs. J. Hollywood, Cal., Aug. 14.—[Special.]—Lina Basquette, film actress, who tried to commit suicide two nights ago, today declared she would not fight a suit for divorce which she said her husband, Peverell Marley, planned to file. Marley, a film camera man, said he might start suit this week, charging mental cruelty.

GROSS ORDERED TO STOP CHICAGO LEGAL ACTION

Ex-Wife Gets Injunction in New York.

New York, Aug. 14.—[Special.]—Mrs. Virginia Harrison Gross, whose husband, Christian Gross, an attaché at the American legation at Bern, Switzerland, won a temporary injunction in Chicago recently restraining her from collecting $250,000 from a $850,000 sum she gave him, obtained from Supreme Court Justice William F. Collins today an injunction restraining Gross from further prosecuting his Illinois action.

Mrs. Gross, daughter of Francis Burton Harrison, governor-general of the Philippines in 1921, was married in Algiers in 1922. She declared her husband agreed not to desert her and their four months infant on July 23, 1923, when she gave him $850,000. They agreed in Paris, 1928, after finally separating, that $250,000 should be returned to her from the original sum which her husband had used to create a trust fund for himself.

After a referee appointed by the New York Supreme court had heard both sides, and had recommended that the Paris agreement be confirmed, Gross started the Illinois action, declaring that they were residents of Chicago, that the New York courts had no jurisdiction and that the agreement was invalid. The referee's report has not yet been confirmed.

Mrs. Gross seeks to have the Farmers Loan and Trust company, trustee of the fund, pay her $250,000 while the trust company has been temporarily restrained by the Chicago courts from paying it.

"It clearly appears from the papers and the referee's opinion," Justice Collins declared, "that Gross has had ample opportunity to submit his evidence bearing on the illegality of the agreement in Illinois. The case was vigorously contested in this jurisdiction, and after Gross found that the result was to be adverse he is attempting by indirection to obtain a retrial of his case in the other jurisdiction. Such conduct hardly commends itself to good conscience."

Justice Collins held that the New York courts have proper jurisdiction in the case.

ENGLISH RESORT CITY OUSTS PEEWEE GOLF; RUINED TRADESMEN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 14.—The first effort to introduce midget golf into England has failed because the Lilliputian links set up at Herne Bay, a seaside resort, ruined the picture postcard and other novelty business in the town. A private enterprise introduced the American craze after a dicker with the council in which it agreed to hand over 40 per cent of the receipts as tax. The promoters cleared $400 in eleven days at 13 cents a round, lining Herne Bay's money bags with $160 in cash, but the council has cancelled the license.

The shopkeepers protested that all visitors with ready cash spent it on the course.

EWALD ESCAPES INDICTMENT BY NEW YORK JURY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 14.—[Special.]—The New York county grand jury decided this afternoon there was not enough substance to warrant indictment in the charge that George F. Ewald paid $12,000 to become a city magistrate.

The jury dismissed the accusation after twenty minutes' deliberation on the evidence it had heard during an investigation lasting two days.

In refusing to return a true bill, the jury accepted the explanation that $10,000, paid by Mrs. Ewald to Martin J. Healy, Tammany leader of the Nineteenth assembly district at the time of the Ewald appointment three years ago, was a loan and not part of the price of office.

In the course of its investigation the jury had heard Ewald, who waived immunity and declared he knew nothing of the financial transactions between his wife and Healy. It had heard Healy deny that he received a cent as a result of the appointment and, more important than either of these, it had listened to Mayor James J. Walker's disclaimer that cash had anything to do with the elevation of Ewald to the bench. The mayor has the appointing power.

The story that Ewald paid $12,000 for his job first came from Emmerich Boczor, who was a $25 a week secretary to Ewald when the latter was a magistrate. Boczor said $10,000 of the total went to Healy and $2,000 went to Dr. Francis M. Schupp, a member of the Steuben society, which backed Ewald when he sought the judicial place.

INHALE?

WE FOUND OUT—AND MADE AN AIR-COOLED SMOKE!

A GOOD MANY cigarette smokers will cheerfully admit they inhale. That's why they enjoy smoking. And that's why they hanker after WINGS in particular.

WINGS—the air-cooled cigarette—is so clean, fresh, cool. You can smoke—and inhale if you will—one after another all day—every day. Each has the same delicious keenness. Each gives you renewed enjoyment.

If you do not inhale—and prefer simply to puff—take to WINGS for its flavor. An individual—intimate—distinct flavor all its own! An honest flavor that is strictly private with WINGS—no other!

No more "stings"—"flares"—"hot-spots." No more "nip"—"smart"—or "burn" or "scratch."

"Air-washing" does away with all that! "Air-washing" unquestionably makes WINGS cleaner—and cooler—not only cools all the fine Turkish, Virginia and Burley tobaccos in WINGS but it "air-washes" OUT all the dust, grit and irritating impurities.

OBSTRUCTING THE SUBWAY.

The work of planning Chicago's subways may be brought to a halt before long because of the failure of the city to pay the engineers and lawyers on the subway staff. There is no lack of money in the treasury. The council has appropriated $500,000 for the work from the traction fund of $500,000,000. The difficulty this time appears to be legal. City Controller Schmidt has expressed doubts about the legality of the appropriation and has passed the issue along to the corporation counsel.

The question seems to be whether the subway can be designed under the auspices of the city council and its traction committee rather than the board of local improvements. Because the subways are going to be paid for in part through special assessment the board of local improvements is concerned at least to the extent of spreading the assessment. The question of how much farther the board's initiative goes is largely academic. The board of local improvements has no subway engineers on its permanent staff and has no money to hire such men unless the council appropriates the money for them. The council must appropriate in the first place before the plans can be drawn and it must pass the ordinance embodying the plans before the subway can be started. The council has the first word and the last. The chairman of the board of local improvements, Mr. Michael Faherty, recognized the situation some time ago when he intimated he would not object to council leadership in the designing of the subways.

The prospect of a serious interruption in the work over a point of technical procedure is shocking. The people of Chicago have been waiting for a generation for subways and gave unqualified indorsement to the franchise authorizing them at the referendum on July 1. The city needs subways and many of its citizens need the jobs that subway building will provide. The selection of engineering and legal experts to undertake the preliminary work met with universal approval. Not a responsible voice was raised, so far as we recall, against the men chosen. It is time the quibbling stopped and the work proceeded without interruption.

AMELIORATIONS OF WARFARE.

Rear Admiral Pratt, late leading adviser of the American legation at the London conference, thinks one of the demands at the next conference on the limitation of armament must be for a drastic limitation on the use of airplanes in bombing cities and civilian districts behind the lines. This is one of the proposals which appeal especially to civilians as mitigations of warfare. Another is the abolition of lethal gases and another the prohibition of submarines. All represent a commendable humanitarian impulse toward reducing the physical miseries of war and limiting its destruction, especially as they reach noncombatants.

A nation fighting for what it believes to be its vital interest will respect legal restraints upon its strength only so long as it does not seem necessary to defy them. If our modern wars were legalized games we might fully rely upon rules agreed upon in advance, but war is not a game but a desperate resort to the arbitrament of force, not adopted save for the most serious motives or without acceptance of the heaviest consequences. Agreements for restraint upon generally unnecessary cruelties, like the rule against dum dum bullets, are respected, but not when special circumstances oppose. Agreements upon restraints which are counter to the full development of force are therefore accepted with considerable reserve by those whose humanitarian ideals have not obscured the warnings of experience or the understanding of realities. They are apt to be pitfalls, if too freely relied upon, and defeat their own ends.

A fallacy suggested by Admiral Pratt's proposal is that the civilian population can be made immune from the military measures of war. It never has been and cannot be. The civilian population supports the military measures, and the line between the actual combatants and those who supply them is irrelevant so far as ultimate victory is concerned. In all wars, including conspicuously the latest, the morale and physical condition of the civilian populations were recognized as essential factors in the solution. The British fleet tried to starve the German civilian population. The German submarines tried to starve the British population. In all wars civilians have been killed, undefended cities looted and destroyed, homes and farmsteads ravaged. There has been some amelioration in recent years. The assumption that a captured city and its people belong for a time to the victorious soldiers for loot and rapine is happily very greatly weakened and in civilized countries virtually abolished. But when proposed limitations upon the use of force collide with essential considerations of victory or defeat, efficiency, with critical issues of victory or defeat, experience and common sense admonish us not to rely upon them.

To say this is to be accused by the impatient idealist of condoning cruelty or even approving it, as the demand for adequate measures of defense is labeled militarism and condemned as love of war. But a proposal for amelioration of the sufferings of war is not humane simply because its spirit is humanitarian. It is to be judged by its practicability and its results. British proposals for the abolition of the submarine or, failing that, for restrictions upon its use, though urged as humanitarian, were not viewed favorably by nations for which submarine operations are believed to be the most available means at their command of offsetting British superiority in surface ships. These nations are unable to see that the drowning of non-combatants by submarines is inhumane, while the shutting off of food supplies by blockade is not. But our humanitarians swallowed the British view whole and were all for anti-submarine agreements. Bombing behind the lines was done by both sides in the late war, but London and Paris were nearer the front than Berlin and therefore the not very sanguinary raids of the Germans were condemned as inhumane, though the least combatant civilians were dying by thousands—children, women, elderly people, especially—from undernourishment fatally aggravated by blockade. Indeed, the consequences of this period of undernourishment are still felt, as when Henry Ford discovered that German workmen could not do the work easily carried by Americans and had a study made of diet with the object of building up their strength. Both the central powers and the allies tried to starve their opponents. The various proposals for ameliorating combatant methods if all adopted and fully enforced would accomplish little compared to the vast waste of health and life inherent in any great struggle between nations. The proposal to abolish all war is at least more logical. The only trouble with that is that nations will prefer war to the acceptance of conditions they feel to be intolerable or the resignation of rights or interests which they value more than peace.

FOOD VALUES OF GRAINS.
Lest a wrong impression result from what is being written about wheat germ, the following should be borne in mind: In the milling of flour and manufacture of cereals there is separation into at least two parts. Into the flour there goes all of the grain except the outer layers, commonly known as the bran and the germ. The flour, therefore, contains most of the starch and protein, and some of the mineral. These are ingredients of high food value. Speaking generally, they are ingredients which are commonly spoken of as energy foods. They are easily digested, easily used by the body, and result in products which are eliminated principally by the lungs. But, however used and however eliminated, they throw a minimum amount of strain on the organs of the body.

Furthermore, the energy foods are the cheapest and most economical of all. They are and will always be the keystone of our foods. The daily diet will always be built around meat and bread. The world-wide use of flours and cereals has caused them to be marketed raw and in barrels, sacks, and boxes. This is an economical method of marketing well suited to the products and to economical distribution. The germ of the grain cannot be left in flours and cereals so long as the present method of marketing is made use of, and no other method need be considered. It is too rich in fats, becomes rancid too easily, and is too attractive for insects.

PUBLIC RELATIONS OF A GREAT INDUSTRY.

A leading electric utility man, Mr. Martin Insull, told a conference at the Virginia Institute of Public Affairs that the utilities have every intention of carrying on their efforts to educate the public as to the facts and problems of their industry. This is not only an assertion of right. It is highly desirable from the viewpoint of public policy. Billions of the public's money are invested in electric utilities. Hundreds of thousands of workers are dependent upon the operation and success of the vast and growing industry for their livelihood and prosperity. Other industries, also involving the incomes of many stockholders and workers, are dependent in varying degrees upon the electric industry. Virtually all communities and most of the people of the United States rely upon its efficient services. In short, the prosperity and expansion of electric utilities are of first rate importance to financial, industrial and social well being of the entire nation.

It follows, for any sane mind, that such a national concern should have its rights and interests fully disclosed and energetically defended and that it should at all times be free to speak for itself. It is not in the public interest that the many and often complicated questions arising in the industry in their relations with the public should be presented solely by theorists without practical experience or responsibility, nor that the solution of these questions should be left either in their hands or in those of politicians only concerned with their own political welfare. The nation is not socialist and does not want a concern so vital to its own material welfare to be interpreted for them by Socialists or professional friends of the people.

The utilities are entirely within their rights when they undertake to present their case to the public, and it is in the public interest that they shall do so. On the other hand, it is of equal importance both to the public and the industry that the process of education, to which Mr. Insull says the utilities are committed, shall be free from indirection and evasion, shall be open and frank.

The public relations of the utilities must be founded on a recognition of the right of the public to full information and open discussion. The only defense of the interests of the industry which can be justified or depended upon is one based upon good faith and the innate justice of public opinion when fairly informed. If it takes the form of bribes to officials and to political bosses, whether direct or indirect, or the subsidizing of newspapers, directly or indirectly, it will in the long run not only fail of protecting the industry but bring upon it the drastic discipline of public action. It may seem profitable to put a friend in the senate or to swap favors with bosses or to influence weak newspapers through financial aid or control. But these are victories the industry cannot afford to win.

Editorial of the Day

A REAL POLE SITTER.

(Boston Herald.)

For the attention of the boys and girls who are establishing themselves atop poles or in the forks of trees in their backyards with all the comforts of home immediately adjacent, including the radio, sofa pillows, umbrellas, and the comic strips and crossword puzzles, we would recommend the greatest pole sitter of them all, who lived a matter of some 1,500 years ago, St. Simeon Stylites. He lacked all the modern conveniences. Pilgrims could climb a ladder up to the little platform 60 feet in the air and consult him about the proper penance for their sins, but there were no reporters to see that he got display on the first page.

He climbed toward perfection a round at a time, so to speak, beginning with a rocky eminence in the desert wherein he sequestered himself by will power alone within a circle of twenty yards diameter. Now, that's a better stunt than the pole in the backyard. It takes more gumption to refrain from stepping over a boundary on the level than to prevent one's self from sliding down a pole when the rain begins to pour.

Simeon's first pillar was only nine feet high, but the last was six times as high and he stayed there not the thirty days of a single month but more than thirty years. He had a balustrade round his little platform but no cabin or other shelter. The devout brought him offerings of food but he did not suspend a tin can for the cash of the profane. Extravagance in austerity but indubitably true is that old record, a wonderful token of the serious business of religion in that early age.

Lest a wrong impression result from what is being written about wheat germ, the following should be borne in mind: In the milling of flour and manufacture of cereals there is separation into at least two parts. Furthermore, the energy foods are the cheapest and most economical of all. They are and will always be the keystone of our foods. The daily diet will always be built around meat and bread. The world-wide use of flours and cereals has caused them to be marketed raw and in barrels, sacks, and boxes. This is an economical method of marketing well suited to the products and to economical distribution. The germ of the grain cannot be left in flours and cereals so long as the present method of marketing is made use of, and no other method need be considered. It is too rich in fats, becomes rancid too easily, and is too attractive for insects.

It must be marketed, is another. It must be sterilized and sealed in cans if it is to be kept long. If it is otherwise marketed it must be consumed within a month after it is marketed, and within a very short radius from the point of production. It, too, serves a very useful purpose, being a most valuable source of vitamins, minerals, and fats. It is not, however, it does not follow that they do not need flour and cereals. The two needs are as distinct as are those of bread and meat—or milk and vegetables.

The part of the grain which does not go into flour and cereals, also is divided into two parts, or frequently is. The bran, the outer layer, is generally marketed without germ, though in mid-dlings there is a mixture of the two. The ordinary bran of the market is rich in minerals, but contains cellulose and starch. It does not carry any material amount of germ.

THINK AS BEDBUG DOES.

152-K writes a treatise on bedbugs which must be condensed, even though doing so spoils it "as a piece." This beast has a physique and a psychology all its own. An Indian taught the writer to think as a bedbug does. They prefer sitting the hands and the neck along the jugular vein. Their feeding time by choice is between 1 and 2 in the morning. They can live in the woods in stumps or in logs, or they can live in abandoned houses. They are cannibals, eating each other on occasion. They suck the blood of some birds, rats, and other animals. The Indians can smell them around houses or logs. This Indian woman's method of catching them was to sleep on a bed of sheets and then to crawl out about 11 p. m. and gather up the inhabited sheets and dis-infect them. Kerosene is a good bedbug repellent. A kerosene spray used around the bed will insure a night's rest. Kerosene sprayed in the cracks is a good killer.

As you say, the way to conquer any insect pest is to learn what it thinks about and how to base one's campaign on that knowledge.

Chicago, Aug. 12.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I bought some land in Florida by mail, but have been defrauded because the man used the money for a different purpose from that for which it was entrusted to him.

1. Is that using the mails to defraud? 2. If so, can I sue the man who defrauded me in Chicago or must I sue him in Florida? The man has since moved to St. Louis, Mo.

3. In a corporation, if one member commits a fraudulent business act, are all members guilty? He claims an incorporated company did the business.

GEE! HE'S A LONESOME GUY!

They were talking on the first page yesterday of a charter that was being demanded of the G. O. P. in Washington for the "All Southern Republican Organization." Well, they ought to give the All Southern Republican Organization a charter. He probably means well, and he'll vote for the G. O. P., so why shouldn't he have a charter? Charters don't cost much anyhow, and think how happy it will make the All Southern Republican Organization hanging around the postoffice and going in day after day and asking the postmaster if there's a letter for him that looks like it had a charter in it. And when he's told "no," how miserable he must feel, and he walks sadly around the town smoking his pipe and wondering if he's going to be chartered or not. Go ahead, G. O. P., give this guy a charter, and then when he is officially recognized as the All Southern Republican Organization how he will smile. Go ahead, G. O. P., give this bird a charter.

BARBARA ANNALS.

When I ride downtown with my mother
On a terribly big, brown bus
A man in a uniform comes along
And he shakes a box at us
(At least I guess it's a kind of box),
And he always smiles at me,
And I've often heard my mother tell friends
I'm so little that I ride free.

When I go to the store with Frances
(That's the girl who looks after us kids),
The man in the store always says "Hello,"
And he raises the cookie box lids
And gives me a cookie (one time it was two!),
Although I don't quite see
Why Frances should pay for whatever she takes Even though I'm much smaller than she.

My father last night at dinner
Was talking as loud as could be
'Bout something I couldn't understand;
But he said "doesn't grow on a tree."
Then he gave me money for ice cream cones
And he grabbed me up on his knee—
I'm beginning to think that it's rather nice
To be little, although I'm three!

DOWN EAST they have the cast iron nerve to say they've got to raise the price of milk one cent a quart on account of the water shortage. Add business candor.

WELL, SIR, believe it or not, but we walk down to Chicago avenue every day to see how they're coming along with that end of our great subway which is going to run all the way to Twenty-second street, almost two miles, but do you know we can't find hide nor hair of that subway? It's most surprising! Maybe they've begun to dig from the other end and we won't know anything about it until they suddenly come busting out right in the middle of Chicago avenue. Here's hoping!

A MAN who spent 113 hours putting on a peewee golf links has been sent to a hospital for observation. That's the way in this cruel, unjust world; the man who invented peewee golf is still at large, and not the slightest effort is being made to capture him.

After dinner Mrs. Anderson backed out one of her automobiles, of which she has two, and gave her guests a fine trip to the Santa Fe swimming pool, then around the backwoods of the water front, then she proceeded to Galesburg and purchased ice cream cones for her guests. Then she returned to her home, and when arriving there her guests were treated with lemonade and cake.

LONDON.—Pushing forward by mere weight of numbers, the German advance across Belgium is slowly but steadily proceeding, and soon must come in contact with the allied armies, which, according to a Brussels communication, are in battle order at some point unnamed. The Belgians in the outmost skirmishing are said to have inflicted severe checks on the Germans, but on the whole the German wing has kept on its way and has reached a line from north of Namur to Hasel. Farther south French troops have entered Belgium through Charleroi and in the east they are reported to have secured possession of ridges in the Vosges mountains and to hold passes at Le Bonhomme and Sainte Marie-aux-Mines.

BRUSSELS.—The Belgian ministry of war has issued the following: "In view of the present dispositions of the French and Belgian armies, it has been decided in the interests of the country not to make any further announcement of the movements of the armies. The government relies on the patriotism of the press to maintain absolute silence on military operations."

PARIS.—The Petit Journal says it learns on unimpeachable authority that Japan is resolved to declare war on Germany and that official action probably will be taken today. It is reported that the Japanese navy has put to sea and will cooperate with the British fleet in action against the enemy's ships in the Pacific.

LONDON.—A News Agency dispatch from Brussels says that an important engagement was begun last night extending from Liege to Luxembourg. It is reported that the whole German line is trying to advance.

PANAMA.—The Panama canal was the scene of great activity tonight in preparation for its opening tomorrow. Gov. Goethals and his cabinet will be on board the Ancon, the first big ship to pass through the canal.

LONDON.—Reports from two sources other than the United States indicate that the allied troops in China are still advancing on Peking. An official Russian message has them fighting about Yangtsun on Aug. 9 with success, and the governor general of Indo-China says he has word that they are within 16 miles of the capital. The Chinese forces are concentrating at Angui and Hsiang Hsiao. A battle is expected at the latter place.

CHICAGO.—The boards of assessors and review have reduced the valuation of real estate in Cook county $51,835,824, as compared with 1899, and some further reductions are to be made. HALIFAX.—The steamship China from Queenstown arrived. Nothing has been heard of the steamer Great Eastern, laying the Atlantic cable, since July 31, when a message from the ship said: "Nine hundred miles paid out. Seven hundred run by Great Eastern. All going on well."

NEW YORK.—A commission is expected shortly to assemble in Richmond to pass judgment on Dick Turner, known as the infamous keeper of Libby prison during the rebellion. Turner, who escaped, has been recaptured and is in a prison at Richmond.

THE BAR AND THE CONSTITUTION.
Hutchinson, Kas., Aug. 11.—I have just read your editorial of Aug. 7 entitled "The Bar and the Constitution" referring to the report of the committee on the fact that each branch of congress has a committee judiciary which is its official adviser upon these matters and the association has had very little luck with proposed legislation; for instance, the association has been trying for years to secure a uniform code of practice for the federal courts on the law side, a most desirable thing. One senator on the judicial committee of the senate has been able to block this for five or six years, and we have never been able to get it on the floor. Again I beg to call your attention to the special session of congress with reference to this subject. In bringing before congress the necessity for some form of farm relief Mr. Hoover said down the line upon which congress could proceed, and the matters which they must avoid in any legislation on the subject. He said:

"Certain safeguards must naturally surround these activities and the instrumentalities that are created. Certain vital principles must be adhered to in order that we may not undermine the freedom of our farmers and of our people as a whole by bureaucratic and governmental domination and interference. We must not undermine initiative. There should be no fee or tax imposed upon the farmer. No governmental agency should engage in the buying and selling and price fixing of products, for such course can lead only to bureaucracy and domination. Government funds should not be loaned or facilities duplicated where other services of credit and facilities are available at reasonable rates. No activities should be set in motion that will result in increasing the surplus production, as such will defeat any plan of relief."

With such limitations imposed by the President in his advice to congress we had a right to feel secure that the constitution would not be invaded or evaded. What happened? Congress adopted a measure that violated every principle laid down by the President, ignoring the safeguards to which he called attention and went absolutely counter to his recommendations. To our astonishment Mr. Hoover signed this measure without a word of protest or comment. Our report was drafted months ago, before the slump in wheat or before the economic failure of the measure had become obvious to every one. It was submitted to the committee, which agreed to it, and it was sent to the secretary of the association four months ago, but of course was not released for publication until July 15. This is the first meeting that the association has had since the farm board was organized and began to function, and we have taken the first opportunity to express our opinion on this measure.

As to the 13th amendment, I have always personally favored an expression of the association on this subject, but it is a highly controversial question liable to cause a great deal of dissension in the association, and the timid ones have always expressed such a fear until now. As you are aware, there is a referendum being held, first, as to whether the association should express itself, and if the answer is favorable, then a postal card expression, the result of which will be announced later. This is the very best we could do. Personally, and speaking only for myself, I have always been opposed to the 13th amendment as a departure from the fundamentals of our government, and I have always condemned it because, in spite of the decision of the Supreme court of the United States I do not believe it was submitted by the majority in congress that is required under the constitution, and that it was therefore never legally adopted.

WITCHCRAFT.

Chicago, Aug. 9.—We teach our children in the schools that the American Puritans committed an outrageous crime by killing about a dozen witches, and we point to the Puritans as a synonym of bigotry, superstition, and cruelty. The Puritans did kill witches, but that is only half of the truth. The whole truth is that witch killing in the seventeenth century was world-wide. In two months 500 witches were condemned to death in the city of Geneva. In Louisiana 900 witches were executed in fifteen years. During the reign of Henry III, in France 30,000 witchcraft convictions took place. In Germany there were over 100,000 convictions in fifty years. In England 30,000 people were killed for witchcraft. In Toulouse 400 witches were burned in one year. In the total number of victims was 20,000.

An authority estimates the total number of witches killed in Europe at 1,000,000. In view of Europe's ghastly record, why malign the American Puritans for killing witches? The wonder is that they did not kill more. The witchcraft delusion extended throughout the world, just as the drink evil of the present time exists among all nations and all peoples. Neither witch killing nor drink can be limited to any one class of people.

EXTRAVAGANCE.

Chicago, Aug. 11.—The other day while standing with two friends on Chicago avenue near State street I noticed a truck operated by the bureau of street cleaning up to the curb and four men got off and proceeded to repair a small hole in the sidewalk. I remarked to one of my friends that they were mixing up quite a large amount of material for so small a space. After a few minutes we saw them, after the great surprise we saw them, after ing about half the cement to repair the hole, dig a hole in the ground and bury the remainder, about a wheelbarrow load. Great as our astonishment was, it was only to be climaxed by a repetition of the act. A bit of mischief was needed for surfacing. Instead of mixing up a few shovelfuls, which would have been sufficient and was really all they did use, another great batch was mixed up and two-thirds of it was deposited in a hole in the ground which was dug for that purpose.

REBELS OF INDIA SHY AT PRISON PEACE PARLEYS

Demand Liberty; Ready to Throw Down Gandhi.

BOMBAY, India, Aug. 14.—(AP)—The prisoners of Poona and the prisoners of Allahabad met again today in Mahatma Gandhi's quarters in the Yerwada jail, but terminated their conversation abruptly until tomorrow after a session of two hours.

All of yesterday's participants, including the Mahatma himself, the two Mohans, and Mrs. Sarojini Naidu were present, as were Sir Tej Bahadur Sapru and Mr. Jayakar, the moderate states of the workers' congress, who promoted the conference looking toward a peaceful end of the civil disobedience disturbances.

How today's conversations got along none outside of those engaged in them could say, but it was remarked again that Sir Tej and his comrades looked extremely grave as they emerged from the jail.

War Council Votes "Freedom!"

So far as the war council of the Bombay provincial congress committee was concerned it did not matter whether the discussions were proceeding well or ill. This body today passed a resolution viewing the present peace parleys with grave concern, declaring that complete independence would be the council's immediate objective.

This action was accepted as a strike, indicating that there are sections of the Nationalists who are prepared to throw down Mahatma Gandhi and other leaders of his choice if peace is their aim.

A special military expedition was understood today to be headed toward the Peshawar northwest frontier district, in consequence of apparent official resolve to suppress continued tribal unrest there. Reports from Lahore said that a large body of troops, numbering among them infantry, cavalry, and air force, had been dispatched to Peshawar. Armored cars which accompanied the troops were expected to see service in routing the last of the marauding Afridis from the mountainous area.

Round Table Conference Delay.

LONDON, Aug. 14.—(AP)—The Indian round table conference, which will attempt to achieve a definition of India's status and future, is not expected to assemble before the second week of November, although at least 14 delegates will arrive here three weeks earlier. Among the advance guard will be the noted maharajah of Patiala, chancellor of the chamber of princes. The total number of delegates will approach 100. Before the Indian conference opens the delegates will meet the delegates to the imperial conference.

Chiang Predicts Fall of Rebel Capital.

BY JOHN POWELL.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

SHANGHAI, Aug. 14.—A Japanese report from Tsinan tonight said Chinese government forces today continued to bomb the capital of Shantung province, held by rebel forces, with five planes attacking various sections of the city this morning, including the railway station. The report said one bomb killed twenty persons, including some women.

The foreign consular body at Tsinan has issued a warning to the Nanking forces against bombing the commercial section of the city, where most of the foreigners reside. As a result of the situation 47 Japanese women and children left Tsinan last night for Tientsin.

Rebel Troops in Flight.

While the Shanai commander, Fu Tso-yi, has announced his determination of holding the city, reports from foreign consular sources at Tsinan say (Gen. Yen Hsi-shan must evacuate, since his troops, stationed at Tientsin on the Pukow-Shantung railway, are retreating in a demoralized manner.

Gen. Chiang Kai-shek, commander in chief of the government troops, in an official report tonight said Nanking troops have advanced to a point within ten miles of the Shantung capital. He states he is sure he will drive out the northern rebels shortly.

Speaking of the general military situation, Chiang declared:

"There is evidence of a demoralization of enemy units on all fronts."

Admiral Reports Reds Massing.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 14.—(AP)—Rear Admiral Charles M. McVay, commander in chief of the Asiatic fleet, informed the navy today he had received unconfirmed reports that "a large number of armed communists" in coolie clothing had concentrated about 35 miles from Hankow.

USE U. S. AIR LAW AGAINST FLYERS IN MINE BOMBING

State Warrants Also Are Taken Out.

Murphyboro, Ill., Aug. 14.—(AP)—Federal and state warrants charging conspiracy to destroy nonunion mine property were sworn out late today against Paul Montgomery and James Malone, aviators, and others in connection with the aerial bombing at Providence, Ky., Monday morning.

Montgomery is from Murphyboro and Malone from Duquoin.

The federal warrants charge violation of the act of congress giving the department of commerce authority to regulate air traffic. These, as well as the state warrants, were sworn out before Charles L. Porter who is both a United States commissioner and a justice of the peace. The state warrants charge the conspiracy was conducted in Illinois.

Both flyers in jail.

The warrants were served immediately on Montgomery and Malone, who are in jail here. Montgomery, who confessed he piloted the bombing plane, had been held pending extradition to Webster county, Kentucky, while Malone had been held for further investigation after he admitted he had acted as a go-between in the bombing plot. He said two men offered three weeks ago to employ him as a pilot, but he was unable to accept the job and turned it over to Montgomery, a friend. He declared he did not know the purpose of the flight.

Officers refused to disclose others named in the new warrants, pending their arrest. Esmer Grant, 30, of Clay, Ky., president of a local mine union, and Ewing Riley of Providence, Ky., are under bond in Webster county on charges of having accompanied Montgomery in his plane on the bombing expedition.

Mine Fire Adds to Sabotage.

Providence, Ky., Aug. 14.—(AP)—Fire destroyed a 60 foot tippie at the No. 3 mine of the Providence Coal company today, with loss estimated at $50,000. It was the highest property damage resulting from an act of sabotage since disorders began in Webster county last July 1, when mines reopened after a three months' shutdown. Wayne Crow, deputy sheriff, who investigated the blaze, said it undoubtedly was of incendiary origin.

The mine is one of the three in the county that did not reopen. It employed 200 men when it closed April 1. Officials said the burning was an act of retaliation against two company stockholders who went to Murphyboro, Ill., early in the week and identified Paul Montgomery's airplane as the one from which bombs were dropped in Webster county Monday.

Federal Agent Indicted

New York, Aug. 14.—(Special.)—John Kormann Jr., federal prohibition agent investigating speakeasies, was indicted on a charge of bribery by the federal grand jury today. The charge is that Kormann asked and obtained $100 from Mrs. Mary Renkevich in return for a favorable report.

Reveals Bugaboo of War Behind Russia's 5-Year Plan

BY LORIMER HAMMOND.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

LONDON, Aug. 14.—War is the real bugaboo of the soviet government's five year plan.

From Dictator Joseph Stalin down to the youngest "pioneer," every good communist in Russia today is firmly convinced that "the capitalist" nations of the world will sooner or later unite in sending vast armies to invade their Red "Utopia."

This bugaboo is no joke to the soviet leaders. They are serious about it. The attempt to industrialize the nation's agriculture is part of an elaborate program to prepare internal defenses to withstand an invasion.

Ready to Move Capital.

The Red war college is so sure that an invasion is coming that arrangements already are said to have been completed to withdraw the government from Moscow to a point securely entrenched behind the impassable bulwarks of the Ural mountains. An important feature of Stalin's five year plan is the building of great industrial plants behind the Urals, where munitions, food, clothing and other necessities for carrying out national life could be manufactured without interruption if foreign armies held the rest of Russia.

Not the least important factor in this defensive program is the soviet government's effort to organize huge state farms operated on almost a military basis. The government is even experimenting on a cross between wheat and rye, which, if successful, will give new types of grain, hardly enough to be grown in large quantities in the cold northern districts behind the Urals.

Moscow is exploiting prison labor along the same lines, while in rural Russia, last month, I learned from Americans working there that the soviet government is making a regular practice of arresting experienced Russian engineers and technical men on the flimsiest pretext, holding them briefly in prison and then releasing them as "industrial exiles." This means that they must design and supervise big government jobs during the next four or five years without pay.

Build Forts in Urals.

These men are being sent to the Urals from southern Russia all the way to the Afghan frontier, where they are building military roads, laying down narrow gauge railways, and establishing forts.

Through such measures Dictator Stalin and his associates are trying to overcome the setback experienced last spring when farm collectivization failed through the refusal of the independent farmers to cooperate. While the government has found it necessary to postpone the small farm collectivization, its application of the collective principle to the big grain districts has gone on steadily. But thus far it has not produced satisfactory results, largely because rail and water transport systems have dropped to the lowest point of efficiency since the famine years of 1916, 1920, and 1921.

Farm Machinery Wrecked.

The attitude of Russian farm hands toward modern agricultural machinery has also contributed another smashing blow to Stalin's hope of "industrializing" the land. The peasant workers put machinery out of commission as fast as they got it.

An agent of an American farm machinery manufacturer in Russia told some of the difficulties of his job there.

"After we install tractors, harvesters and other machines," he said, "these people expect us to help operate them—then out troubles begin. The Volga is strewn from one end to the other with wrecks of perfectly good American, English and German agricultural machinery, which cost the soviet government millions of dollars last year. Russian farm hands have completely ruined them already through mishandling and neglect.

Let Machines Go to Ruin.

"It is worst of all on the big state farms where the communist bosses let their men do exactly as they please while the managers don't care how much government time and money is wasted.

"The harvesting machinery sold to them last year has been so badly used that I am afraid that they will ruin more than they reap when they try to use them to take this year's crop.

"Every peasant boy tinkers with the machines sent by the government to these collective farms. I have seen new tractors taken apart and scattered along the landscape by a mob of communist youths."

Yankee Clubs Tractor "Wreckers."

I met at least one American in Russia who enjoys his work. He is a big, hardy West Virginian, who served as an M. P. in the American army at Brest, France. He now works for an American tractor company at Kharkov, in the heart of the Russian wheat belt. When tractors are delivered he walks beside them until the papers are received. He carries a regular M. P.'s club, with which he hits any native who as much as lays a finger on the machine until it is turned over to the Russian authorities.

The Russians themselves are now building farm machinery at their new state factories, but American engineers, employed as experts, say that the Red technicians alter the designs continually just for the sake of trying to be original, so that more than a half of the machines turned out won't work.

Since the use of modern machinery constitutes the backbone of Moscow's scheme to industrialize farm life, its failure to educate the peasants in the proper use and care of the new machinery is one of the greatest factors in the recent collapse of the state's efforts to put agricultural life in Russia on this basis.

ITALIANS RING BELLS TO CALM CYCLONE; 4 DEAD

70 Hurt as Walls Fall in Storm at Naples.

BY DAVID DARRAH.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

ROME, Aug. 14.—The fall end of a violent cyclone and cloudburst lashed Naples early this morning, taking the lives of four persons and injuring 70. Six of the injured are dying. For more than an hour high winds whipped the sea into waterpots as the rain descended in torrents. Clouds hung so low that the city was precipitated into pitch darkness, lighted up only by lightning flashes.

The terrified inhabitants, believing the storm to be another cataclysmic visitation and the end of the world, rushed into the churches to pray, while bells throughout the city were rung in the belief that their vibrations would calm the storm.

Market Place Wrecked.

The roaring winds blew down walls, trees, telephone poles, crashed window panes, and did the heaviest damage in the market place, where 3,000 were engaged in marketing. The gale lifted a heavy zinc roof off the market and carried it hundreds of yards away, while the walls of the building cracked and tumbled, burying four persons beneath them.

The fire department and militia were called out and succeeded in clearing away most of the debris and rescuing all wounded and those caught beneath falling masonry by noon today. The 25 most seriously injured are in San Pellegrino hospital, where many victims of the recent earthquake are still being cared for. The duchess of Aosta, who won the affection of southern Italians for her work in the earthquake area, rushed to the scene of the ruins this morning and visited the injured.

Cyclone Sweeps Rome.

The cyclone appears to have had its origin in the north, sweeping down the west coast. It struck Rome at 3 a. m. with a heavy blast of wind and a downpour of rain, wrecking telephone wires and trees as well as flooding the streets near the Tiber.

At the same time earthquake shocks of considerable violence were felt near Florence and Bettola, near Siena.

Windstorm Sweeps Chile's Coast.

VIQUE, Chile, Aug. 14.—(AP)—A violent windstorm from the north yesterday swept this coast from Arica south, doing considerable damage. The area around Caleta was particularly hard hit, a number of houses and buildings there being destroyed. Although the force of the blow was not so great here, all work in the harbor and shipping were suspended.

Communist Candidate for Congress Changes Prisons

New York, Aug. 14.—(Special.)—Repeated violations of prison rules and concerted attempts to stir up trouble among the prisoners resulted in the transfer from Wolfara Island today of Robert Minor, communist candidate for congress, to the municipal "arms on Rikers Island."

The Nine Hundred Block

BY KATHARINE HAVILAND TAYLOR

SYNOPSIS.
To the nine hundred block, with its deteriorated dwellings, moved gentle, lovely Theresa and her mother, Mrs. Cole, under the watchful eye of Mrs. Baum, neighborhood boss. Theresa makes friends with Katie Warner, who lives upstairs, and B. Jones, a reporter; she also meets Theresa, who is engaged. He has found employment painting automobiles. Theresa does typing at home to support herself and her mother, who has known better days. Mrs. Cole wants Theresa to marry Billy Treadway, a rich bachelor bean of her own childhood.

Theresa's father, Arnold Ames, married again after Theresa's mother divorced him to marry Harrington Cole, who recently died. The father now has a belated desire to help his daughter, but his wife threatens to leave him if he does. He arranges with Harold Gale, a friend, to secretly give Theresa work. For Christmas he sends her a thousand dollar bond. Johnny Deane had determined not to tell Theresa of his love for her until he had broken his engagement, but does not keep his vow. When he confesses, Theresa feels he has deceived her and she will not forgive him. He breaks his engagement, and the girl, informed, sells his letters to a newspaper. Johnny returns to his father's home. Theresa tells her mother she will marry Billy Treadway and writes to her father, who calls and tells Theresa it would be criminal for her to marry Billy.

Johnny, in New York, keeps informed about Theresa through Katie. He tells his father about Theresa. The older Deane communicates with Arnold Ames, and together, the fathers scheme to bring about their children's happiness.

Mrs. Cole dies, and Katie writes to tell Johnny that Theresa misses him.

INSTALLMENT XXXV. AN IMPORTANT JOURNEY.

"Well, if that ain't a swell letter!" said Katie, rereading it, and Johnny thought so too. It reached Johnny the next morning and early, Katie having gone all the way to town to mail it and deciding there [and after some debate] upon "one of them blue stamps that costs ten cents and makes letters go there quicker."

Johnny skimmed the letter hastily, sank to a chair and closed his eyes. Then he reread it very slowly—swallowing hard, blinking as he read. Then he wandered to the big hall, unaware of the fact that he had been ready to step into the tub when Humphries brought him a special delivery letter.

His father met him here to wonder whether the boy had been drinking. "You'll catch cold," J. Z. spluttered.

"O, yes," said Johnny, and with surprise, as he looked down at a vast expanse of skin; and he added as if in satisfactory explanation, "I left my bathrobe somewhere."

"So I gleaned. What the devil are you doing?"

"I'm hunting a telegraph blank. You see—I want to send a telegram."

"You sound like a perfect example from the Psychopathic ward. What is the matter with you?" demanded J. Z.

Johnny handed his father Katie's letter. J. Z. read the letter, eyes narrowing.

"You get dressed," J. Z. ordered, and I'll look up trains. At breakfast you got that wire to Katie. I doubt whether you could spell a message, at this moment, with alphabet blocks—that is, without help."

"Right, sir!" Johnny admitted as he reached for the letter and having captured the letter he put it on a chair by the tub, which led to his getting into his mouth the while he thought he was washing his ears. He could not seem to look away from the line which told of Theresa's getting mad.

Opera Better Attended, but Deficit Higher

Guarantors 'Are to Raise
$588,528.

BY KATHLEEN McLAUGHLIN.

Brilliant as was the opening season of the Chicago Civic opera in its new temple of music at 20 North Wacker drive, its annual deficit was in proportion. Guarantors of the opera learned that yesterday on receipt of the annual report of the trustees, the sum to be prorated among the guarantors and raised by them is $588,528.

Samuel Insull, president of the Civic opera, who signs the report, cites the "constantly increasing cost of producing grand opera" as the cause of the discrepancy between income and outgo despite the fact that a gratifying increase in opera patronage was recorded. The income from the seat sale for the initial season in the new opera house was $1,211,837, and income from other sources added $117,776, making a total on the credit side of the ledger of $1,329,613. Expenses amounted to $2,918,141.

Paid admissions during the initial season in the new opera house totaled 308,018, as against 272,006 for the previous season, a sum of $4,012. The average price paid for a ticket for the 1929-30 season, it is reported, was $4.02, as compared with $3.49 for the preceding year. This increase, it is explained, is due to the fact that the seating capacity on the lower floor of the 20 North Wacker drive auditorium is larger than that of the old Auditorium.

Coincident with the issuance of the report yesterday Business Manager Herbert M. Johnson arrived back in Chicago from Europe, having landed a few days ago from the Commodore Vanderbilt. As usual, Mr. Johnson spent the summer abroad searching for new talent.

His announcements of new contracts with singers is headed by the news that Mary McCormic is to return to the Chicago Civic opera this fall after an absence of seven years. Miss McCormic's return will be made early in the season as Manon in the Massenet opera of that name. She has been singing at the Opera Comique in Paris. She has not yet left that city and is now rehearsing there for her Chicago appearance with four members of the cast—Charles Hackett, Edouard Couturell, Jean Veulle, a young French baritone, and Conductor Emil Cooper.

The engagement of Veulle was first made known yesterday by Mr. Johnson. Other artists who are to be

Another Tag Day Is Added to City's List

Polish Charities to Benefit by Latest One.

Regardless of promises to restrict the number of charity tag days, and agitation to combine all veterans' tag drives to one day's activities, an additional tag day for disabled veterans has been permitted in an order presented at the last council meeting, it was revealed yesterday.

The latest order, introduced by Ald. Sheldon W. Govier, authorizes the commissioner of police to permit the Ladies' Legion of the All-American Veterans of Polish Extraction to conduct a tag day on the streets in Polish communities in Chicago for disabled veterans.

If the Ladies' Legion takes advantage of its permit, this will make the third tag day for veterans, the others being Poppy day, conducted by the American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Spanish-American War Veterans, and Forget-Me-Not day, held by the Disabled American Veterans.

Previously the council had authorized tag days for the Children's Benefit league and for the Federation of Aged and Adult Charities, and left the third to be selected by the aldermen. That was assigned to the Federated Charities of Chicago. An additional tag day was allowed providing one for the Salvation Army, and with the new order there are seven yearly tag days on which citizens of Chicago are asked to contribute to charity.

Plans to combine the tag days for veterans was opposed by representatives of the various organizations when presented in 1928 to the council tag day committee. Recently, it was learned, an effort for a single tag day for all veterans' organizations was being made among veterans' organizations on recommendations of some members of the city council.

The Legionnaires hope that the veterans' organizations can tag at the same time, possibly with corners allotted according to membership, on lines similar to the other tag day groups, such as the Federated Charities," said A. P. Boyle, a member of the new committee. "The committee hopes to formulate plans to present to the various veterans' groups."

From other quarters there was an opinion expressed that one tag day would cut down the overhead expenses for all veterans' groups, giving more of the tag day receipts to the purpose intended. On Poppy day in May this year the American Legion received $59,913.15 net, with a total cost of $12,788 for poppies, etc., according to reports furnished to the city council. The Spanish-American War Veterans took in $7,375.27, of which $3,297.37 was net earnings. The Veterans of Foreign Wars have as yet made no report.

The Disabled American Veterans on Forget-Me-Not day, September, 1929, had total receipts of $77,864.75, of which $13,192.75 went for expenses. Opposition to the single tag day was expressed by Herman H. Welmer, national commander of the Disabled American Veterans.

"The Disabled American Veterans are composed entirely of disabled veterans, whom we help in the sale of forget-me-nots," he said. "We get much larger returns by our own tag day than if we joined the others. The American Legion has a service office to assist all ex-service men, not just the disabled. The disabled men have a higher death rate than the others, and we attempt to see that there is a firing squad at each funeral and that funeral expenses are paid. Personally, I should like to see charities figured on a community chest basis."

More than 15,000 Expected for Baptist Celebration
More than 15,000 delegates are expected to attend the 50th anniversary celebration of the National Baptist convention, colored people which opened last night at Olive Baptist church, 31st street and South Park way. The convention is to extend to Aug. 25. Five thousand attended the opening session last night, which was under the auspices of the Colored Baptist Young People's union. The Rev. J. K. Williams, president of the convention, will act as moderator.

Cathedral at Mexico City Will Be Reopened Today
MEXICO CITY, Aug. 14.—(AP)—Mexico's national cathedral, known as one of the most beautiful buildings in the two Americas and built on the site of an Aztec temple in which living sacrifices were made, will be reopened Friday after having been closed since outbreak of the religious controversy in 1924.

THE STAGE

THE proposal made several weeks ago by the Actors' Equity association to establish suburban nights in Broadway theaters will be adopted at the Charles Hopkins theater on Oct. 7, according to New York dispatches.

Mr. Hopkins, who will offer four plays this season on a subscription schedule, has set aside the second Tuesday night in the engagement of each play as the evening on which the curtain will be raised at 7:30 p. m. instead of 8:40. On nights when early performances are given, the play will end at about 9:45 p. m., enabling commuters to reach early trains. Mr. Hopkins will inaugurate the plan during the run of his first production, "Mrs. Moonlight."

Frank Gilmore, president of Equity, who asked last month for the co-operation of producers in this plan, said yesterday that Lee Shubert had agreed to try out early performances of three plays this season. The Theater Guild will also experiment with the early curtain hour, Mr. Gilmore said.

This plan will permit the suburban dweller who works in the city to attend a play, and get home at a reasonable hour. It will be welcomed by Manhattan's multitudes of commuters, and the managers of Chicago's theaters would do well to undertake a similar experiment.

Mary Pickford says that her appearance upon the actual stage this season under the management of Arch Selwyn, recently announced, is conditional upon the discovery of a play that suits her. Several manuscripts are under consideration, among them a piece by Paul Keister. She adds that, at any rate, her Broadway appearance "this season" will be only for a period of eight weeks, between cinema engagements.

The Dramatic League of Chicago canceled its annual meeting of the Devlin's Diary," by Maurine Watkins, author of "Chicago." It seems that Miss Watkins has forgotten to finish the play. The league names Leslie Banks, who has been a favorite impression in "The Infinite Shoozhack" last season, for the leading role in "The Man in Possession," by H. M. Harwood, which is to be the third production of its approaching program. It also says that Miriam Hopkins, now in the New York version of "Lysistrata," will have the title role in "The Girl in the News," with which its season will open. Lennox Pawle, an English comedian who has been active on the American stage, will be prominent in the cast of this piece.

Frank Craven has written another play for his own use, and John Golden is ready to stage it. "That's a drat!" is its title, and among those who will cooperate with Mr. Craven in the acting are Marie Nordstrom, George Barbier, Maida Reid, Thelma Marshall, Gerald Kent, George Wright and James Lane. The troupe performance is scheduled for Aug. 25 in the New York suburban area.

Paul Robeson, the Negro actor who conquered London with his Moor of Venice in "Othello," is much in demand among American managers. Michael Mindin, the latest impresario to try to persuade Mr. Robeson to accept a contract. "Sweet Charity," based on the career of Marcus Garvey, is the play that needs him. The piece is now in rehearsal, and is scheduled for a New York opening Sept. 22 so it does not seem likely that Mr. Robeson will join it. In view of the approach of the football season, this item in the Robeson's brilliant career seems appropriate. He played and for Rutgers, was elected to numerous all-star lists; and had post-graduate exercise on a professional team representing Akron, O. C. C.

St. Clair County, Ill., Has More Marriages, Divorces
Belleville, Ill., Aug. 14.—(AP)—There were 2,008 marriages performed in St. Clair county during 1929, according to the statistics of the department of commerce made public yesterday. There were 1,948 ceremonies in 1928. The number of divorces increased. The 1929 figure was 493, while the 1928 total was 408.

IRISH FREE STATE BARS 3 MORE BOOKS; 21 NOW PROSCRIBED
(Copyright, 1930; By the New York Times.)
DUBLIN, Aug. 14.—Three more books have been forbidden to Ireland under the new rigid Free State censorship restrictions. It was announced yesterday. They are "Ante Hic" by Aldous Huxley, whose "Point Counterpoint" also was blacklisted; "Red Heat," by Norman Lindsay, and "Sex and Its Mysteries," by George Riley Scott. The reasons given are either offense to public morals or advocacy of birth control.

There are now thirty publications forbidden in the Free State—twenty-one books and nine newspapers.

Bishops Vote to Recognize Birth Control

Lambeth Parley Also Acts to Curb Armaments.

LAMBETH PALACE, LONDON, Aug. 14.—(AP)—A clarion call to "humanize religion," to defend the Christian standard of the family, of marriage, and of the sacredness of sex, to meet squarely and frankly other problems of life, was sounded by the Lambeth conference of Anglican bishops. They have just concluded their deliberations here.

Sixty bishops of the Protestant Episcopal church of the United States were among the 306 who sat for five weeks under the chairmanship of the archbishop of Canterbury.

This afternoon in the medieval guard room of Lambeth palace that archbishop discussed the results of the conference, as embodied in an encyclical letter and 79 resolutions, containing in all some 70,000 words, considered by the church authorities to be epochal in the history of the Church of England and challenging to the religious thought of the world.

No mention is made in the encyclical of such controversial subjects as the prayer book or disestablishment, or of separation of church and state.

The vote on only one of 75 resolutions on which the bishops acted was made public. That concerned birth control. It was carried, 193 to 67. That resolution stipulates that "where there is a clearly felt moral obligation to limit or avoid parenthood, the method must be decided on Christian principles." The resolution strongly condemns "the use of any method of birth control that involves selfishness, luxury, or mere convenience."

On divorce and remarriage the bishops resolved:

"The conference, while passing no judgment on the practice of regional or national churches within our communion, recommends that marriage of one whose former partner is still living should not be celebrated according to the rites of the church."

"Empires have perished before now because the dry rot of laxity and corruption in home life set in," said the Encyclical. "The bishop's treatment of marriage and divorce is not a mere consideration to reaffirm the principle and the standard of marriage as a 'lifelong and indissoluble union for better or for worse of one man with one woman to the exclusion of all others on either side.'"

The Encyclical begins with a "Sursum corda"—"Lift up your hearts"—"though we are aware of the extent to which the very thought of God seems to be passing away from the minds and hearts of many, even in nominally Christian nations."

Then comes a call to humanize religion with "new emphasis upon the appeal to the mind as well as to the heart."

The resolution on the question of peace and war declares: "The Christian church in every nation should refuse to countenance any war in regard to which the government of its own country has not declared its willingness to submit the matter in dispute to arbitration or conciliation."

It was explained today this has direct relation to the league of nations and the Kellogg pact. It does not preclude, however, the right of self-defense as, for instance, in the present raids of the Afridis on Peshawar in India, in which case there exists no international means for settlement of the trouble.

Another important development was the denunciation of war as incompatible with the teachings of Christ, together with a clear-cut statement that "the existence of armaments on their present scale among nations endangers the maintenance of peace."

The conference joins in an appeal for a further effort to secure continued reduction of armaments by international agreement.

Other results of the conference are a recognition of the help to religion of modern science and a call of youth, in its "mental confusion and spiritual hunger."

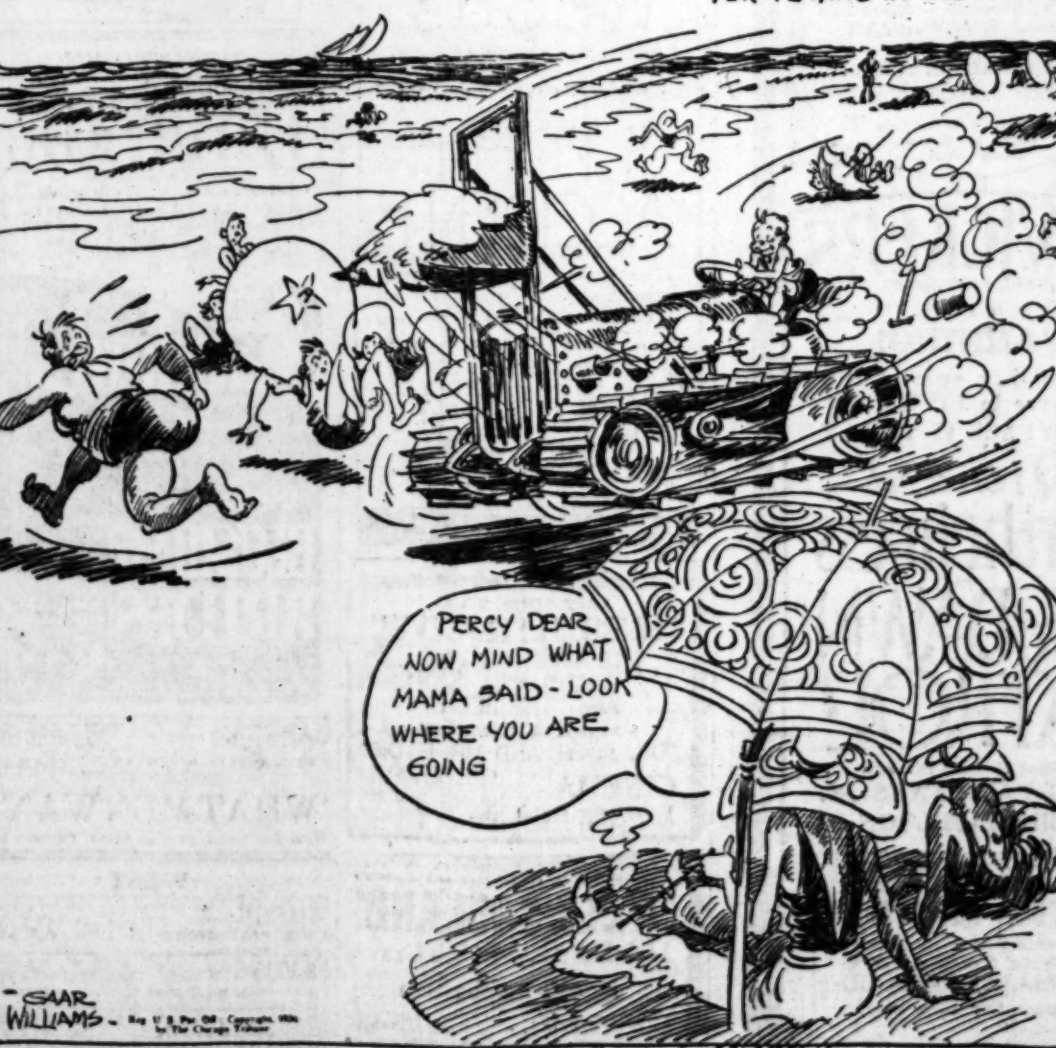

Women are to be admitted to the ministry of the church as far as the order of deaconesses.

There emerged from the conference, as contained in the encyclical letter, the declaration that no one should be excluded from worship in any church on account of color or race.

The archbishop of Canterbury this afternoon explained the conference's suggestions are not formal decisions. They are advice and counsel given to the Anglican church throughout the world.

E-ware of Too Much Pride in the Child Who Seems Brighter

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

A booklet on how education will be sent by Mrs. Bevans on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

In several families I know there are two children and one of these children is apparently brighter than the other.

Whether one is actually brighter than the other, I don't know, or whether one has been treated so that he's merely developed better, I don't know. All I know is that one is apparently brighter, has a better school record, or is in a higher grade for his age than the other.

In several of these cases the mother and father have an obvious pride in the brighter child. When she's (or he's) successful they beam. When the other fails they turn their heads away. They emphasize the brightness of one and the slowness of the other.

This is a very serious, a very wrong thing to do. These less bright children when they are treated so are badly handicapped. They are apt to lose confidence in themselves in every direction. They feel, "I'm too stupid to do that," even if it's something like learning a new game or a new dance. They're paralyzed by the consciousness that they can't do it. Sometimes such a child will be just as bright as the other, but favoritism or mismanagement of some sort will keep his development back.

Parents who have one child who seems less bright than the other must watch their step. They must make this child feel first that it makes no difference to them. Second, they must emphasize something that this child does particularly well, or give him an opportunity at some art or craft on the chance that he may excel at it.

For instance, suppose his academic subjects are poor at school, but suppose he is clever at carpentry or knows a great deal about airplanes or natural history. Keep his cleverness at those things enough in the foreground to offset the classroom superiority of his sister or brother.

Make that less bright child realize, too—that it is really a fact—that many a man and woman have made their mark in the world who did not get on rapidly in school. And soft pedal—but don't depreciate—the brighter child's work. Try to make each appreciate the other's achievement in a different line of endeavor.

Or, use some other means if you don't like any of these suggestions. But do build up in your less bright child a sense of assurance and a satisfaction in his ability to do some kind of thing well. And be loyal and kind to him.

Summer Top-Coat Shows Paris Chic

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Though the thermometer may mount until the thought of any wrap becomes unbearable, it would nevertheless be rash to venture vacationing without a top coat, especially in Europe where the weather changes without warning almost from one hour to the next.

Chantal, who practically takes everything into consideration, makes her summer top coats strictly décolleté. She knows how stuffy a high collar looks and feels in hot weather and a scarf, ranging from a light silk one for the faintly chilly hours to a hat fur cravat for the frankly cold ones, can so easily and so smartly be added.

Chantal's collarless top coat, sketched above, is of the new pleated tweed that has a lively roughish surface and velvet depths. It is in that soft Franciscan brown that is slated to be one of the leading fall colors. It depends for trimming upon its extremely clever cut. The sleeves grow into a yoke and diagonal panels in front and they continue round from the back to form the incised belt which is fastened by one large natural wood button. A tab belt is incised at the natural waist line in back.

All the seams are outlined with double nerves. Chantal suggests two frocks to wear with this coat, one of light weight woolen in monk brown and one of orange tussor. The bag is of piece dyed tweed to match the coat and it has a natural wood tuck.

One Can't Depend on "Fortune" Tellers to Bring Back Sweetie

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"Would you put stock in a fortune teller who told you that an old beau that you did care terribly about would return soon and claim you? There is another toward whom I was beginning to feel the way I formerly did, but this fortune teller upset me because 'he told me, without having any way of knowing, all about the earlier affair of mine.'"

If you mean, Anonymous, that you are about to discourage the second author's advances in favor of the fortune teller's promise I should certainly advise you to hang onto him until you have more than a clairvoyant's tale to build upon.

As things work out, it's pretty thin substance there is to fortunes. In every woman's life there is a school-boy sweetheart or a teen affair of the heart, so it is not clever of a fortune teller to drag him up at a three or five dollar session with the spilt. In fact, as human nature goes (as the fortune tellers have it worked out rightly), lives run pretty much along the same pattern. The letters and the voyages and the proposals, the inheritances, the good news, the death, past romances and present and future all fit into a neat plan for fortune telling action. Too, a good many of them as you yourself would become were you dealing directly in character revelation as a business. So that guesses are pretty well fortified with the average person's experiences.

It's funny the way a fortune teller may hit wide of the mark on one guess, hit the bull's eye on another, yet the gullible client is more impressed with the correct marksmanship than with the failures. She deliberately forgets the discrepancies in the fortune told in her eagerness to believe what she wants to believe.

As an amusement, fortune telling furnishes about as agreeable an hour as can be asked.

FARM AND GARDEN BY PAUL POTTER

MEN'S GARDEN SHOW.

Full plans of classes and prizes were announced yesterday in a meeting of the Men's Garden club of the Chicago region which will stage an annual flower exhibit and show at Garfield park conservatory Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 6 and 7.

W. A. Schuler as president of the organization declared he had assurance from members and other amateurs and professional and commercial growers that the event would be larger than it had been since started several years ago. Last year there were more than 60 exhibitors with about 1,200 exhibits. The garden alone last year numbered around 20,000 which is said to have been the largest collection ever shown under one roof.

In 1929 there was one exhibit of 10,000 gladioli shown by A. E. Kunz of Goshen, Ind., and another group of 8,000 of the same flowers by the Mission gardens at Techny, Ill. Both of these exhibits will be represented in the show this year, Mr. Schuler reports.

The committee working on the two day show includes O. V. Morgan, L. W. Mack, John Riva, August Koch, M. White and G. J. Collins.

Classes for competition have been divided into four sections, the first of which is open to amateur members of the Men's Garden club, section B, members of the club who are commercial florists or plant growers who may exhibit material growing in their commercial plantations; section C, open to all amateurs in Chicago and suburbs; and section D, for commercial growers.

Three hundred and twenty-one classes are listed in the various groups of perennials, annuals, shrubs, vase or basket flowers, fruits and vegetables, gladioli, primulas, gladioli, dahlias, lilies and aquatics. In the sweepstakes ruling, the class A exhibitor who wins the greatest number of points for vegetables will receive the national garden bureau bronze medal. There also will be a bronze medal for the best gladioli in class A; another bronze medal for the best dahlias in class A; and a special ribbon for the largest dahlia in the show. Exhibits must be ready for examination by the judges at 11 a. m. Sept. 6.

Worry Lines Can Ruin an Otherwise Beautiful Face

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Notice some day when you are riding on a public conveyance how many women have brows marked with two outstanding lines of perpendicular mold directly above the bridge of the nose. Women from 30 on, particularly, likely to see this brow marking.

One ; times immediately that eye strain ; y has something to do with their creation. And it has. Just as often, however, the deeply indented lines are the result of brow-puckering lines as a knotty problem is to be solved. And, of course, we have become a nation that looks upon every slight disappointment or bit of adversity as a knotty problem. We've fallen into the habit of looking at life too intensely for brow smoothness. If it isn't one thing we can think up to worry and go wrinkle about, it is another.

Anyway, that mark between the eyes and just above the hollow at the bridge of the nose is very, very common. You see it on women, obviously devoted to facials and clothes and all the paraphernalia of those who aim to look well.

It may be eye strain, as said. Eye strain may have started it and the habit reared to have given the lines depth. Perhaps glasses are not adopted early enough. Perhaps they are not changed often enough. Glasses should be gone over every couple of years, at least, and a new eye test taken.

Turner has it that our system of home lighting hasn't been any too kind to American eyes. Women have sacrificed their good sight to the beauty of rooms decorated with lamps that may give off lovely light in which to rest, but not to read.

However, you'll have to find the cause if you are among those present in the roll call of perpetually marked brows. They're ugly lines. They're ageing ones. One can treat them to palm massage and clear them off fairly well if the basic cause is removed.

Grease the palms and plant the base of the palms just beneath the eyebrows. Press on the palms and work the hands in opposite directions toward the outer eye rims. Go back and do it over again, and again. You can do this twenty times a day. Just stop a minute and "iron" out the lines with the palms every time you think of it.

Ice Cream, Motors Add to Kids' Joy at Algonquin Camp

While money gifts arrive daily in The Tribune mails for the maintenance of Camp Algonquin, the tenement mothers and children on vacation there are remembered in other ways by friends.

It was a smiling group of 500 campers that greeted as many dishes filled with ice cream last Sunday after the big dinner had disappeared. Out in the kitchen the cooks worked overtime dishing up the 20 gallons that had been brought out from Chicago by truck. The dessert was sent by the Goodman American Ice Cream company, which will furnish another 20 gallons for next Sunday's dinner.

The most popular party was that furnished by the Harrington Hills Golf club of which Mrs. Frank Johnston was president. Boxes filled with lunches were sent for the enjoyment of Algonquin vacationers.

The most popular sport in camp—motor boating—was the possible this summer through the gift of two motors for boats belonging to the camp by Samuel Insull Jr., chairman of the summer outing committee of the United Charities. Several times a day counselors fill the boats and go for a spin at breakneck speed through the water while the children, most of whom had never been in a motorboat before, shout excitedly.

As for the children themselves, they are intent on making Algonquin more attractive. When visitors come they proudly show the hanging baskets they made of reeds and have filled with geraniums and greenery. They have been hung on the porch of the refectory and the library.

Croquettes Are Suggested for Week-End Menu

They're a Little Different from Steady Fare.

An adequate diet maintains health at its most abundant level.

BY META GIVEN.

Something different in food as well as recreation is what we think about for the week-end. Something that can be prepared ahead of time and kept a few hours in good condition before serving. Have you ever thought of the great variety of croquettes that are possible—fish, meat, macaroni, rice, and vegetables? And all can be made the substantial dish of the meal. Croquettes need to be bound together, and there is nothing better for this than a thick white sauce which can be made ahead of time. In making it is a good plan to combine the food with hot white sauce rather than cold. When the mixture is cold croquettes may be molded into shape.

There is a great variety of shapes, cylinders, cones, rectangles, balls, and many other shapes that may be formed in fancy molds that may be bought. Croquette mixtures should be stiff enough to hold shape. Take enough time and care in forming the croquettes—this is important to retain shape.

The next process is to coat the croquette with some material that will make the croquette impervious to fat. Beaten egg or undiluted evaporated milk serves this purpose very well because each contains a high percentage of protein which coagulates on heating. A coating of crumbs adds to appearance, and there is nothing nicer than bread crumbs. Croquettes may be molded, egged, and crumbed and put into a tightly covered container in a cold part of the refrigerator several hours before trying.

Croquettes should be cooked at the proper temperature. Those made of cooked mixtures should cook at a temperature of 375 to 390 degrees Fahrenheit, or sufficiently hot to turn a one inch cube of bread a golden brown in 40 seconds. Raw mixtures need to be cooked at a lower temperature, 350 to 375 degrees Fahrenheit, or hot enough to turn a one inch cube of bread a golden brown in one minute.

Croquettes should be free from fat, and the best method of doing this is to lift them out of the fat with a slotted spoon, allowing as much of the fat to drain away as possible, then putting them on a piece of unglazed paper to absorb the rest of the fat. A paper towel serves well. Croquettes may be kept hot in an oven until ready to serve.

WOMAN'S AND MISSES' DRESS.

The bodies of this pretty dress is cleverly designed to affect a smooth fitting hip yoke. Cut through the perforated line each side of the front and back, and join the gathered upper edge to the lower part. This gives a panel effect at front and back that gives a lengthened line. The flared sleeves are pretty and the circular skirt fits the hip yoke and widens into fluttering fullness at the hem. Flat silk crepe, crepe de chine, crepe Elizabeth, and chiffon voile are lovely materials from which to choose.

The pattern, 2600, comes in sizes 16 and 18 years and 20, 22, 24, 26, 28, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 4 1/2 yards of 38 inch material with 1 1/2 yards of 3 1/2 inch wide ribbon for the bow.

He Heard the Radio.

Ray, our neighbor, came over to our house every day to listen over the radio to the ball games despite the fact he had a radio of his own. We disliked this, so one day I decided to play a trick on him.

I met him at the door and told him we could not hear a thing over our radio. He made his way into the house, though, and sat down for a seemingly everlasting time.

Finally he arose. I thought he was going to leave, but he politely walked over to the radio and turned it on. Imagine my embarrassment when the announcer's words rang clear through the house. The blood rushed to my face.

I called to my mother, who was in the other room, "Why, mother, the radio works."

My embarrassment was completed when she called back, "Why, I didn't even know it didn't. It was going just a few moments ago."

Canning Crop Is Hit by Drought, Housewives Told

Damage in Midwest Will Reduce Yield.

BY PAUL POTTER.

Reports from grocers in the Chicago area yesterday indicated that housewives were evidently anticipating the possible results of the nation's crop damage due to a prolonged drought, which is still taking its toll in most central western states this week. Purchases of canned foods have been materially higher than usual at this time of the year, and exceed quotas established by many of the larger food dispensing concerns, the grocers said. Canning factories in the midst of their heavy packing season in middle west states and on the eastern seaboard yesterday gave varying reports of crop damage in a survey conducted by THE TRIBUNE. The total estimated pack of the country will be about the same as in 1929 on nearly all kinds of canned edibles, the survey indicates.

A light crop of cherries, injured by frosts rather than dry weather, has been completely canned, according to W. P. Hartman, president of the Michigan Canners association. He placed the total pack at 30,000,000 cases in Michigan, 28,000,000 in New York, and 10,000,000 in Wisconsin. The national cherry crop is a little above normal, he said, with little surplus on hand. Hot winds in Michigan have injured string beans more than the drought, reports indicate. A recent light rain over the state, which produces 95 per cent of the nation's bean crop, aided conditions but little. Lima beans are 50 to 60 per cent of a full crop, yet a larger acreage this year brings the total for the nation to a little over normal. Threshing of lima bean fields will start in Michigan next Monday. White beans are 75 to 80 per cent of a full crop, according to Mr. Hartman, who returned last night from a state-wide inspection of canning crops. Although it is early to forecast yields of pumpkins and squashes, he believes there will be plenty of this pie making product this fall and winter.

The Illinois and Indiana sweet corn pack is about 60 per cent of the estimated crop last spring, according to canners. However, there was an increase in acreage, which forecast 25,000,000 cases of corn this year, had not the drought seared the nation's production of about the 1929 pack of 17,500,000 cases.

Harvey Burr, secretary of the Wisconsin Canners association, yesterday was completing reports from the state's factories which forecast a total pack of between 9,000,000 and 9,500,000 cases. The northern Illinois pea crop was below normal also, due to frost as well as drought damage. Wisconsin's sweet corn pack will be between 75 and 80 per cent of the expected yield, better than the national average, Mr. Burr states. Beets were injured in spotted areas in Wisconsin, suffering between 40 and 50 per cent reduction.

The tomato crop will exceed last year's output, according to yesterday's reports. This crop stands drought the best of all perishable vegetables. It was said, and the packing is heavy. Local can manufacturers reported expectations of a total pack of all vegetables somewhat in excess of last year.

Representatives of midwest state colleges met at the Palmer house yesterday to discuss projects for aiding farmers in selecting hogs for their ability to produce good weight gains economically. Prof. E. F. Ferrin of the University of Minnesota, chairman of the session, stated that many farmers in the midwest were utilizing wheat and barley in place of corn, wheat being ten per cent more efficient than corn pound for pound, with barley five to ten per cent less efficient than corn.

Summer Drought Affects Crops of Peanuts, Potatoes

Peanuts may be fewer in the bag this fall and winter, sweet potatoes may be somewhat smaller, Arkansas rice crop prospects have been reduced, and string beans will not be so plentiful in canned supplies this winter, according to the government crop report following a survey of the effects of this summer's drought. Barley soup will possibly be more popular than for the last five years. Although the heat and dry spell reduced the nation's crop 26,000,000 bushels since estimates were made a month ago, the barley production probably will be 65,000,000 bushels above that of the average for the last five years, or an indicated supply from 1930 harvesting of 304,000,000 bushels, the United States department of agriculture reports.

No need for worry about a food supply in general is foreseen by the government.

HOUSEHOLD DISCOVERIES

If you have a household hint or unique discovery you are willing to pass on to other housewives, send it to Sally Lunn, Chicago Tribune. Recipes are excluded.

Decorate a pair of wooden snap clothespins. Tie three-quarters yard of baby ribbon to each spring and hang from the bed-room curtain pole. Hung thus, the clothespins are very handy for fastening up the curtains at night, or to keep them from blowing against the screen in dusty or rainy weather. T. L. Peru, Ill.

Rub hose on wrong side at points where wear comes with a piece of un-melted paraffin until the places are shiny. Do this after each washing and hose will wash out before they wear out at places so treated. T. L. Peru, Ill.

The smell of peppermint is obnoxious to mice and a little oil of peppermint, put around corners in their vicinity, will make them find other quarters. E. M. Chicago.

When cooking sweet corn, if a tablespoon of vinegar is added to the water the corn will not turn yellow. Mrs. H. J. T. Chicago.

To clean parchment or paper lamp shades use wallpaper cleaner. In case one has the painted shades, remove the string and lay flat on table. The lamp shades will clean beautifully and look like new. Mrs. C. K. Peru, Ill.

Paint, no matter how hard and dry, can be taken out of wooden clothing by using a solution of equal parts of ammonia and turpentine. Saturate the spot two or three times, then wash out with soap suds. E. G. Chicago.

To keep the edges of linoleum mats or rugs from curling up or breaking, I paste or glue an inch wide strip of carpet binding or strong cloth close to the edge on the under side of the mat or rug. Mrs. H. G. D. Lodi, Wis.

Musk Oxen May Furnish Future Meat Supplies

When reindeer were shipped to isolated northern ranges years ago the country hailed a new meat producing industry which now is to have a rival in a new project which calls for delivery of 30 musk oxen to be obtained in Greenland and introduced into Alaska.

The U. S. department of agriculture reports that domestication and utilization as a meat supply are in mind for the experiment which will be conducted at Fairbanks, Alaska, through a recent appropriation of $40,000 by the government.

Musk oxen in zoos, it is said, have proved to be gentle and easily tamed. They thrive in confinement if given a sufficient amount of carrots and other root crops with a hay diet. The meat is of excellent quality and similar to beef and buffalo meat when properly dressed at the right time of the year, the government men say. The biological survey bureau is cooperating in the new study.

Experts Relate New Theories in Meat Cooking

Old theories of meat marketing and cooking went by the boards to be replaced with more up to date mandates as a result of conclusions reached by livestock authorities of thirty agricultural experiment stations, home economics teachers, and federal department of agriculture officials, who closed a four day session here yesterday.

For instance, boiled ham is no longer boiled. Instead, as these analytically minded research specialists have decreed, the ham is simmered, or cooked below the boiling point. "The consumer's dollar will buy more meat today than at any time since the war," according to a statement signed by the conferees. "From every part of the country reports in regard to the less sought after cuts of meat are selling for exceedingly low prices. The resourceful housewife may reduce her food cost materially by utilizing such cuts as plate, flank, and chuck animals, they say, produce more than steaks and chops, and housewives with a frugal nature may easily learn how to prepare the less tender cuts as suitable testy changes from the more popular but expensive purchases.

"People today are buying smaller cuts of meat, making it necessary to modify plans of cattle production," reports the conference. Investigations under way have demonstrated that the beef from yearlings is as palatable and tender as beef from heavier, older cattle, which are more expensive to produce. Again, they have exploded the common understanding among consumers, as well as producers, that the heifer is inferior to the steer as a beef producer. Sex in the beef business is an equality, declared the state and federal authorities. Up to a weight of around 700 pounds, the heifer produces beef which is just as palatable and economical as that from her brother. Furthermore, it is produced as cheaply.

There is still room for considerable investigation on what feeds produce the best meats, it was learned. Just what combinations of corn and other feeds give the best and most economical results on the cow, the sow, and the lamb are yet to be solved to the satisfaction of the state colleges conducting this type of research.

Inspectors Keep Eye on Imports of Coffee Beans

Coffee is one commodity watched so closely by inspectors in the food and drug administration that seldom is coffee found which violates the pure food law. The United States department of agriculture comments in announcing that imports amount annually to 1,400,000,000 pounds.

Some specific instances of attempts to fool the public are cited in a report just issued which shows how the food inspectors work. The coating of the coffee berry, known as "silver skin," has no beverage value and is removed before roasting. The skin is difficult to remove from the fold or crease of each individual berry and some usually remains, so that even the best coffee brands contain as much as 2 per cent of chaff.

CUBS WIN, 5 TO 1: MALONE Baffles ROBBINS

CARNERA FIGHT PRODUCERS SEE $750,000 GATE

Sharkey, at Least, Is Novelty Here.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
New York, Aug. 14.—The best financial estimate of the prize fight business estimates that the bout between Jack Sharkey and Primo Carnera in Chicago will draw $750,000, which sum would represent an overwhelming vote of confidence in the two pugilists who have been guilty of a series of failures and apologetics in the present era.

Sharkey's entire career has been a series of failures and apologetics, and the political records of various administrations in cities and states which made themselves notorious and then were rescued with great enthusiasm. This would be a puzzling state of affairs but for the fact that the customers, in their capacity of citizens, taxpayers and voters, have so long been accustomed to the same state of affairs in more important departments.

It seems to be no special reason to bear down on the past performance of the two high-priced young sportsmen and denounce them before a clientele who doubtless love them the more for their incompetence, their cynicism and their misadventures.

Like Political Mediocrity.
Sharkey has been negligent of his obligations and contemptuous of the rights and comfort of the customers as the habit of years, but in him I detect a strong resemblance to a number of well known political mediocrities who have been loafing through the advancing stages of public office for years and who still command the same support at the polls that Sharkey commands at the turnstiles.

Carnera, accused of faking, but still the most influential attraction in pugilism, suggests the political situation where a governor, also accused of faking, once regained the office by proxy, in the person of his wife, and now seems in a fair way to win it by proxy again.

Still, the customers are the people, and if they admire Sharkey and Carnera $750,000 worth, on their record, there will be no going behind the returns. Nobody ever stuffs the ticket boxes at a prize fight.

New to Illinois Fans.
One argument that has been advanced in Sharkey's favor as an opponent for Carnera and a drawing card in Chicago is the fact that he never has been seen in a ring in Illinois. To those who have seen him against Risko, Heeney, Dempsey, Fanning, Philip Scott, William Stripling and Max Schmeling, for which he received $100,000, it might seem that the Chicago customers should be congratulated upon their discernance.

Carnera's appeal to the patrons is more easily understood. His American campaign has been the most picturesque exploit of its kind in the sport industry in this country, but through it all he kept his tongue in his cheek and there never was any real betrayal of public trust. The customers were forewarned that his opponents were either paralytics or dry tank men who would go into the water without excessive shoving, and the program was conducted in that spirit of restrained comedy which distinguished Charlie Chaplin's work.

The boys took the ring in the regular manner and observed all the customary preliminary social forms, such as searching one another's gloves for chunks of brick and protesting about the grease on one another's features. They then would retire to their respective corners for an impressive instant before the first bell and then, at the going, there would ensue such hilarious bouncing and flopping as the patrons never had seen before and a quick finish found the party of

TILDEN, LOSING TO SUTTER, QUILTS AS CROWD JEERS

Walks Off Court When Gallery Laughs.

Rye, N. Y., Aug. 14.—[Special.]—With the score 4-0 and 15-11 against him in the second set, after he had lost the first to Clifford Sutter of New Orleans at 6-1, William Tilden, national tennis champion, walked off the courts of the Westchester Country club in the eastern championship this afternoon with the statement that, "I think I have had enough of this gallery."

The dramatic termination of the match, which was awarded to Sutter by default, was Tilden's method of protesting against the attitude and remarks of certain spectators in the stands who apparently were not convinced that he was as badly crippled as his play indicated. The champion walked off the court with a pro-nounced limp, the result of an injury which he sustained last evening in a doubles match, when he twisted a muscle in the right leg above the knee.

It was apparent before the play got under way that Tilden was in no shape to undertake the match.

Sutter Certain Victor.
Sutter, playing a heady game, in which he abstained from speed and concentrated on changing his length and direction to keep Tilden moving, had taken nine games in a row after the champion had won the second love. So completely was the intercollegiate title holder in command of the match that there did not appear to be the shadow of a hope for Tilden, who was hobbling about and apparently unable to put any weight on his right foot.

The crowd was laughing repeatedly at his failure to win points.

After losing the fourth game of the second set, Tilden served an ace for the first point of the fifth game and Sutter took the second on a cross shot, placing the crowd in a predicament. The champion walked to the baseline and was about to serve when he protested against the attitude of the gallery. Then he started forward towards the net, threw down the balls in his hand and remarked to Sutter, that he had had "enough of this gallery."

The long legged, young New Orleans youth had planned his match shrewdly and even had Tilden been in shape he probably would have had his hands full for the afternoon.

Frank Hunter Beaten.
Frank Hunter, second in the ranking and runner up to Tilden in the tournament last year, followed the champion out of the singles less than an hour later as he went down before a rampant John Van Ryn by the decisive margin of 6-1, 6-2. On top of this, Tilden and Hunter went back on the court later in the afternoon and were eliminated from the doubles by Ellsworth Vines and Keith Gledhill, national junior doubles champions, 6-3, 4-6, 6-4.

BRITISH POLO TEAM TO ARRIVE IN U. S. TODAY

In the WAKE of the NEWS

ROAMING.
NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—Friend Arch: Well, Arch, when I asked you if it was all right if I came east for a few days and you said yes, if I came at my own expense, because you didn't want to worry about my expense account, I decided to come, but I got to thinking about what you said later, and really, you don't worry about the expense account nearly as much as I do. You see, you only worry when you get it, while I worry all the time I am out of town and making it. Then I worry from the time I give it to you until it's paid. So don't you see, I worry most.

Remember when I came for the Schmeling-Sharkey fight? The ticket agent offered me a special room with a bed in it and it was $20 extra, and when I asked him the advantages he said I would be more comfortable and could sleep alone and I refused. Well, I thought this time the experience of sleeping alone for $20 might be worth it, but lo and behold, there weren't such rooms on the train I took, which left an hour earlier than I usually come.

Well, of course, after I arrived I looked up Frank Bruen of Madison Square Garden, who used to be with us at Arlington Park as manager in Curly Brown's regime. Right away I bumped into all the New York fight writers, all steamed up over Mike Malloy's effort to stand Sharkey and Carnera in our fair city.

About five of us stood on the corner of Eighth avenue and 49th discussing the situation and in five minutes there were twenty. Among them were Pat Stripling, Joey Jacobs, Schmeling's manager, Jeff Dickson, the European promoter who just arrived to find an opponent for Schmeling for a bout on the other side, and Johnny Buckley, Sharkey's manager.

When Joey saw me he took a flying leap and landed on what would have been my collar button if I hadn't had on a soft shirt. Joey's small, so that's all right, but I'm glad it wasn't Carnera.

Then I asked Pat Stripling if Willie was going to fight soon. Well, Pat wasn't sure because Willie has an injured left hand, you remember, the same injured left hand on account of which he wanted to postpone the Von Porat fight in Chicago, and John Clinlin and George Gets and Fred Gardner, our boxing commission, wouldn't let him, and Willie's hand was injured so badly he only used it once in the fight, and then the fight was over and Willie was winner.

Mike Malloy has problems, it seems. Sharkey has made so much money already this year that he feels he'll be fighting for Uncle Sam on account of the income tax if he fights any more.

Another embarrassment, Johnny Buckley suggested Mike post $100,000 guarantee in cash. Mike felt down in his right trousers pocket and it wasn't there, so he's going down into the subway this evening and see if by any chance he left the $100,000 there.

Anyway, he can find it somewhere if the Sharkey people really are sincere.

O, yes, I also bumped into Pegler and he asked me to dinner and he took me to a swell place where they called him "Mr. Pegler," instead of "Peg," as you and I do, and I guess that was worth the price of the meal to him. After the waiter had taken our order, he asked "And what will you have to drink?" And, of course, I wanted to be humorous, so I said, "A Scotch highball." Do you know, Arch, that waiter had no sense of humor at all, for he brought a nice Scotch highball, and of course I had to throw it away, for isn't there a prohibition law or something that doesn't allow it?

I don't know when I'll be back because I have a little money left, but I think it'll be soon, from present appearance. If I see any one else you know I'll write or call. Regards, Harvey T. Woodruff.

P. S.—They charged me $2.25 this morning for breakfast of toast, eggs, and coffee, but you don't have to worry about this trip.

Hanley Tells N. U. Fans Big Ten Race Isn't Over

Dick Hanley is having a busy time these days explaining that Northwestern must win a few football games before it can claim the Big Ten championship for 1930.

Since the Purple coach made known that he has the greatest college football player he has ever seen as captain of his team, some Wildcat rooters believe the conference race is as good as over.

"I'll stand by everything I said about Hank Bruder," Hanley said yesterday. "But I want to make it clear that it takes more than one outstanding player to pull a team through a schedule like we face this season. Our material, as usual, is limited. We never have had and probably never will have squads the size of those at state universities."

"The public has had little opportunity to appraise Bruder's potentiality. He was injured three days before the first game in his sophomore year and was on the sidelines until late in the campaign. Last year he suffered a broken leg in midseason. My opinion of Bruder is based on his all-around work. He does everything well. Unlike many lads who are skillful ball carriers, Bruder always is in there ready to block for the other fellow. He has that unselfish attitude and modesty that a coach likes.

LEAD SLIPS AWAY FROM CARAWAY; SOX LOSE, 5 TO 4

Senators Score 2 Runs Off Pat in Seventh.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

Washington, D. C., Aug. 14.—Pat Caraway, the rising young southpaw, wasn't equal to the job of protecting a slim lead this afternoon. He had a margin on two occasions but let it escape both times and in so doing permitted the Senators to make a clean up of the three game series with the White Sox. The score was 5 to 4.

Caraway was an accomplished workman in all except two innings. One of these was the fourth, when three Senators batted home and erased a 2 to 0 Sox lead. In defense of Caraway, however, it should be pointed out that this job was due partly to ill luck in having ordinary fly balls elude capture. Shortly after the Sox not only did the count again but moved out in front by one run. It proved a futile effort. Caraway subjected himself to an assault that sent the tying and winning runs home in the seventh.

Thomas Pitches Today.
Thomas will pitch in a one day stop at Philadelphia tomorrow. Rummel is expected to hurl for the Macks.

The bat of Mr. Jolley assisted the Sox in scoring a run off Carl Fischer in the second inning. He led off with a double down the left field line and rumbled over to third on Cissell's fly to right. A single by Mullenave scored Jolley. The same Mr. Jolley was instrumental in putting together another Sox run in the fourth. He opened the inning with a single behind short. Cissell fanned. Clancy lined to left and Mullenave walked. Tate then singled Jolley across the plate, giving the capcans a 2 to 0 lead, which soon vanished.

Manush, who admits Caraway has his number, started the three run Senator rally in the home fourth by hitting a bunt. Cronin whacked one past third base for a double, Manush halting at third. Harris sent a fly to deep center, Manush scoring and Cronin going to third after the catch. "Woodie didn't allow for a stiff cross wind on Kuhl's fly and the ball fell for a triple, Cronin scoring. A phoney double to short center by Bluges scored Kuhl and put the Senators ahead by 3 to 2.

The Sox tied the score in the fifth. Kerr was handed a pass and he stole second after Watwood had popped out. Fothergill knocked Fischer out of the game with a vicious drive which scaromed off the pitcher's left ankle. Kerr went to third on the hit. Liska then assumed the pitching task and Jolley bounced into a force out on which Kerr scored.

Caraway Hits Double.
A double by Caraway and single by Kerr put the Sox in front by one run in the seventh, but the Senators came right back in their half and did the damage that reserved the day's decision for them. Watwood didn't allow for a him. Cronin double to center, Manush stopping at third; Caraway loaded the bases with an intentional pass to Harris. Manush scored the counter while Kuhl was forcing Harris, and Cronin scored the winning run when Bluges singled.

Even though close to defeat the Sox displayed enough spunk to stir up some excitement in the home fourth by getting out the ninth. After two were out, Kerr and Watwood uncorked singles. With Fothergill coming up, the Senators decided Liska needed relief. Crowder was selected for the task and responded by fanning the giant-man. Score:

Hawthorne to Take Aurora's Fall Race Meet

There will be no fall racing this year at Aurora. It was announced yesterday that the 16 day meeting scheduled to run there from Oct. 13 to Oct. 31 had been transferred to the Hawthorne track.

Persistent requests from horsemen and prominent and influential patrons of the sport that we take over the Aurora fall dates caused us to complete the negotiations," John C. Schank, president of the Hawthorne association, said.

By the new arrangement Hawthorne gets 45 days of racing in Chicago this year, 16 days more than the other tracks, which have operated meetings extending over a period of 30 days.

Clifford R. Trimble, general manager of the Aurora track, has been seriously ill for several weeks and it is believed to have been the reason for the Aurora association's giving up the fall meeting.

BARBOUR TELLS OF SOX OFFER FOR JOE HAUSER

Washington, D. C., Aug. 14.—(AP)—An offer by Charles Comiskey, owner of the Chicago White Sox, to purchase Joe Hauser, slugging first baseman of the Baltimore International league team, for $75,000 cash was announced here today by Lou Barbour, secretary of the Chicago team.

Barbour said the White Sox had been negotiating for Hauser for nearly two weeks and that Comiskey was willing to add John "Bud" Clancy, Sox first baseman, to the large cash payment if the deal could be closed.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Pat Malone, the big black knight of the border, never played with greater determination or more grace than yesterday when he appeared as flustering Brooklyn Robins for his fourteenth victory of the season. The score was Chicago, 5; Brooklyn, 1, and the visitors' run was more or less a good will offering with two out in the ninth.

The win was the thirteenth the Cubs have achieved over the Robins in the eighteen contests played this season, and placed the Chicagoans a game and two percentage points ahead of Uncle Robbie's boys. It also enabled them to gain a half game on the idle New York Giants, whom they now lead by 3 1/2 games.

The clash yesterday was no such thriller as the opener on Tuesday, because of Malone's superior pitching and the fact that the Cubs rushed over all their runs in the first three innings. But it was an interesting game, with several episodes of unusual action and had none of the sloppy elements of the 15 to 5 Brooklyn victory of Wednesday, due to the fact that Uncle Robbie relieved his starting pitcher with able talent, which Manager McCarthy made little or no attempt to do Wednesday.

Root, Luque Hurt Today.

This afternoon, which is ladies' day, the clubs will play the final game of their next to last series of the season. Charley Root will go after his fourteenth victory of the season and will be opposed by Old Adolfo Luque. This same pair hooked up in the last Cub-Robins series and Charley won the only defeat of the five game stand, 5 to 2.

But whatever the outcome today, Brooklyn will move on to Pittsburgh tonight in second place; if they win, by a percentage of .581 to .55 for the Cubs, and more than two full games if they lose.

In the game yesterday Malone was in only one jam, and that in the eighth with the score at 5 to 0. In that inning the Robins lost the bases on their fifth and sixth hits off Malone and a walk. But the threat ended with a fly to Dan Taylor.

Brooklyn made its run as follows: Brester led off the ninth with a single, paused while Moore and Finch batter Heimlich fled out, went to second and third unmolested while Malone was pitching to Frederick and scored on Frederick's throw to first. The game ended when Farrell threw out Gilbert.

Hartnett Beats Out Grounder.
The Cubs stepped right into in the first inning and made enough runs to win the ball game. After Moore had thrown out Blair, English walked and Cuyler dropped a Texas league double near the right field foul line, English stopping at third. Wilson then lined a single to right, scoring English and Cuyler. Dan Taylor, substituting for Stephenson, who was injured in an attempted diving catch in Wednesday's game, struck out and Grimm grounded out to Moore.

There was a lot of action in the production of the one run the Cubs made in the second inning. Hartnett started it by beating out a grounder over third. Farrell fled to Herman and Malone fanned, but Blair singled to center, Cuyler's going to third, Wright cut off Frederick's throw in and tossed the ball to Moore in time to make Blair alter his plan to reach second. Moore attempted to overtake Blair on the trip back to first, and while this was going on Hartnett broke for home.

The net of the thing was that Hartnett scored and Blair got back to first. Blaisett dropped a none too good throw from Moore in a last desperate effort to catch Blair, but no error was marked down, it being considered that Blair would have returned safely regardless. English followed with a double, Blair stopping at third. Dudley relieved Clark and the bases were full when Cuyler was hit by a pitched ball. Then Moore threw out Wilson.

Less Effort to Score Two.

In the third the Cubs made two runs with much less hitting than they

"The commission's study of prices in various cities is going forward steadily," said the announcement. "The work of obtaining prices at Des Moines has been finished and a number of examiners are continuously employed on the tabulation and analysis of these prices."

ARREST FILIPINO AND 3 CHINESE IN TONG WAR PLOT

New York, Aug. 14.—(AP)—Three Chinese, possible members of the Tong Ong, and a Filipino were arrested tonight in what police said was a conspiracy to slay members of the On Leong Tong for a bounty of $500 each. Detectives said the wholesale killings were to be done by two youths, whose names were withheld, and that the rewards were to be paid by the three Tong Chinese. One of the youths disclosed the alleged project to Detective Benjamin Rosenberg, a friend.

Detectives met the youths and the Filipino, whom they called the master mind of the alleged plot, near a laundry. After a struggle the man was overpowered and three revolvers and seven long knives were taken from him. The three Chinese were captured inside the laundry, where a large quantity of cartridges, an ax, a ten gallon still, and some cash were confiscated.

BROKERS' LOANS
SHOW DECLINE
OF $59,000,000Cut Rediscount Rate in Kansas City.

The weekly report on brokers' loans furnished no surprise to speculators in La Salle and Wall streets yesterday. The report of the federal reserve bank reflected the decline in active trading in the stock market, showing a shrinkage of $59,000,000 in loans to brokers from the previous week. The current total of $1,155,000,000 marks a drop of $1,155,000,000 from a year ago.

The New York banks increased $73,000,000, while interior banks withdrew $11,000,000. The non-banking lenders, including corporations, withdrew $3,000,000. It was announced in Washington by the federal reserve board that the reserve bank of Kansas City had established a rediscount rate of 3 1/2 percent on all classes of paper on all maturities, effective today. This action leaves only the Minneapolis and Dallas reserve banks with a 4 percent rate.

Borrowings Decline.
No unusual changes are shown in credit conditions in the weekly report of the federal reserve system. Borrowings of the member banks showed a decline of $15,408,000 to $190,515,000. Reserve banks increased their holdings of bankers' acceptances by $20,757,000, while their holdings in government securities showed an increase of $30,113,000. Deposits gained $40,372,000, and note circulation rose $5,743,000. Total reserves showed a decline of $15,878,000 and $11,807,000, respectively. The reserve ratio receded to 32 percent, compared with 33.1 percent a week ago.

Nominal Decline Here.
The report of the Chicago reserve bank showed a nominal decline in member bank borrowings of $573,000, with bankers' acceptances practically unchanged. Deposits showed a decline of $7,814,000, while reserves showed a decline of $14,600,000. The reserve ratio fell to 32.1 percent, compared with 32.7 percent a week ago.

Conducts Analysis.
Mr. Murray has conducted an analysis covering the period from 1880 to the present, and the results of the survey show, according to Mr. Murray, that a short crop in one year does not materially affect the trend of business.

"Since 1880 there have been eight years when crop yields were either low or lower than indicated for this year," he said. "An examination of business activity in these periods does not indicate that short crops for one year materially affect the trend of business."

"From these precedents it may be inferred that short crops this season should not be regarded as an important deterrent to business recovery during the coming autumn and spring."

Per share earnings on the common stock for the June quarter amounted to 73 cents a share, compared with $2.07 in the like quarter of 1929. Directors declared the regular dividend of 75 cents a share on the common, as they did in the first quarter, necessitating dipping into surplus.

EARNINGSNEW WARNER BROS.
FINANCING TO YIELD
AROUND $15,000,000

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 14.—New financing for Warner Brothers Pictures, Inc., through an offering to stockholders of an additional share of common stock at $20 for each four held on Aug. 25 was announced tonight in a letter to stockholders. The offering is worth around $15,000,000. The letter states that the current assets of the company as of Aug. 1 totaled approximately $41,000,000 and current liabilities were less than $17,000,000.

The letter discloses that the reason for the recent passing of the dividend on the common stock was because the directors did not believe that the $4 rate which was placed on the common stock will be earned for the fiscal year, which ends Sept. 1, due entirely to expected loss during the last quarter, which includes June, July and August. The letter states that the audit of the first nine months of the fiscal year, soon to be completed, is expected to show earnings of approximately $4 a share, and then states that during the last quarter of the fiscal year motion picture receipts are normally at a minimum.

The stock offering has been underwritten by a syndicate headed by Goldman, Sachs & Co., and Hayden Stone & Co., to the extent of 755,000 shares, which is approximately the number of shares to which the holders of the common stock now outstanding will be entitled to subscribe. The letter announces that Richard F. Hoyt of Hayden, Stone & Co. had been added to the board of directors of the corporation. Walter E. Sachs of Goldman, Sachs & Co., is on the board. Warner Brothers stock closed today at 25 1/2, up 1/4 of a point. On this basis the rights to stockholders are worth approximately $5,000,000.

WHEAT MART MOVES UP FROM BOTTOM LEVELCorn Bobs About to Close Lower.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

A break of 11 1/4c in the price of September wheat from the high point of a week ago was regarded yesterday as having materially strengthened the technical position of the market and with an announcement that the Canadian banks had decided to finance the pool operations this season prices moved up sharply after a decline of around 1c from Wednesday's finish.

Fluctuations throughout the day were extremely rapid and the close was at intermediate figures, with net gains of 3/4c, September being 89 1/4c at the last, while December was 95 1/4c@95 1/2c; March, 99 1/4c@99 1/2c, and May, 102 1/2c@103. Corn closed slightly lower.

There are so many conflicting influences in the market that traders are not disposed to take a decided stand on either side. Reports that Russia had sold a liberal amount of wheat to the United Kingdom and the continent overnight and relative weakness at Winnipeg had a depressing effect early and offset strength in Liverpool. The latter closed 1 1/2c@1 1/4c lower, with October there going to around 18c over Chicago September, the widest difference so far this season.

Foreigners After Wheat.
Continued wet weather in Europe seems to be causing considerable uneasiness abroad. Liverpool cable that the persistent rains were offsetting the effect of pressure of Manitoba offerings. There was a large export business under way during the day, with sales placed at 1,000,000 to 2,000,000 bu, about half of which was understood to be American hard winter and the balance Manitoba. At the Gulf the basis on hard winter was 1/2c higher, reflecting the liberal sales the last few days, and country offerings showed no evidence of increasing. Italy was credited with having bought 1,200,000 bu Russian wheat of late.

Carry-over of wheat in all positions in Canada, including the amount in bond in the United States on Aug. 1, is estimated at 128,000,000 bu, or exactly the amount that was on hand at this season a year ago. It is figured that the world's carry-over this season is about 130,000,000 bu less than last year, the reduction being entirely in Europe and in the southern hemisphere.

According to the gossip of the trade the heavy selling of wheat futures at Winnipeg on Wednesday was by houses with Chicago connections. Winnipeg, however, failed to follow the full return this side of the line and closed 3/4c@3/8c higher for the day, with October there only 4 1/4c over Chicago September.

Corn Closes Lower.
Corn prices fluctuated in an uncertain manner within a range of around 2 1/4c and closed 1/4c@1/2c lower, with September showing the most strength. The latter finished at 86 1/2c@86 1/4c, with December 91 1/4c@91 1/2c; March, 93 1/4c@93 1/2c, and May, 95 1/4c@95 1/2c. Some of the local bulls took advantage of an early break to restate sold out lines, as the December was off 9 1/4c from the recent high. There was also buying on expectations that a special government analysis on the drought situation would be issued, but later messages from Washington said the report was not intended for general dissemination.

Says Yachting Helps Keep Vacation Money in Chicago

BY SCRUTATOR.

It is a matter of frequent remark that Chicago is just beginning to understand its own advantages as a summer resort. Most of these advantages accrue from the proximity of cool Lake Michigan.

Yachting is one of the summer recreations that it furnishes. The hold it has on its devotees is no secret, but it is probable that the extent to which it draws is not widely known. Pleasure vessels and small craft, according to the figures of the local office of the department of internal revenue, are almost 7,000.

A small percentage are being operated on the rivers of Illinois and on inland lakes; the government registers all such craft by the residence of the owners and not by the location of the boats. The compilation includes a number of sail and power boats of small size; yet there are more than a hundred yachts Chicago registered of over sixteen tons.

Much Money Invested.
Amount of investment in pleasure boats that enable Chicagoans to enjoy the lake is uncertain. Men familiar with the growth of yachting here would not even hazard a guess. Certainly it is well up in the millions. There is, of course, a great difference between the little outboard motored vessel and the big yacht more than 150 feet long. Yachting on a large scale is among the most expensive of sports. Some on the high seas are known to cost more than $125,000 annually to operate. The little boat around Chicago, it is claimed, can be operated more economically, both as to investment and upkeep, than an automobile.

Estimates of the number of people who take to the water in boats on the most favorable days run as high as 20,000. If 12,000 or 15,000 more crowd the shores of the lake to look on at races, as it is reported they do, the total is not far from the number who are playing golf in the metropolitan area.

Upward of a dozen service yards, or boat garages, care for the needs of the local Vikings. One of them alone in the busy season employs a hundred men. The total of the workmen engaged in service operations in summer is several times this; the estimate is 300 to 400.

Registry Increasing.
There is a cluster of these stations on the north branch of the river and others strung at strategic points along the lake from Wilmette to Indiana. Storage yards are an important factor in the off season. Thirty motor boats are in taxi service. There are yacht harbors at Wilmette and in Lincoln, Grant, and Jackson parks, and clubs with initiation fees ranging from the merely nominal up to $1,000.

For the last five years the registry of sail and powered pleasure boats in the area has been increasing by 300 annually. According to Hubbard Erickson of the motor boat mart the present year has been about as good as last in sales, but has not been up to expectations of increase. The addition of more harbors and a more thorough understanding of the freedom from traffic worries on the lake would further democratize yachting and aid in persuading Chicagoans to spend their vacation money at home.

F. R. WARREN SEES TURN FOR BETTER IN U. S. BUSINESS
The W. F. Hall Printing company has maintained a volume of production and sales about equal to last year, it was stated yesterday by Frank R. Warren, president. "If the printing trade may rightly be accepted as a barometer of business, as I believe it to be, then we may look for a decided acceleration in trade in the fall months," Mr. Warren stated. "Inquiries have increased materially in the last two weeks. "One element that has accelerated our business this year has been the progress made in color printing at high speed on all grades of paper. Because of the demand for such production, we have expended $500,000 for new high speed presses, which will be delivered Feb. 1 and March 1 next. All the production of this equipment has been contracted, for and this will represent new business for the W. F. Hall Printing company."

tribution and some of the local trade...
Showers were reported overnight in parts of Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Nebraska, and Kansas, sufficiently heavy in some sections to check deterioration of the corn crop, but there are an increasing number of reports coming forward that the ears have been poorly pollinated and the amount of grain will be smaller than anticipated. It is said by local observers that farmers generally have paid little attention to this development. There was very little corn offered to arrive during the day, while shipping sales were 110,000 bu.

Oat Market Active.
Commission house buying and short covering more than offset hedging pressure and liquidation by three long in oats and the finish was 1/8c higher, with September 30 1/2c and December 4 1/4c at the last. Rye was fairly active, with hedging pressure from the northwest causing a decline early, but the market rallied toward the last in sympathy with wheat and closed 3/4c higher, the wheat being at 80c for September and 84 1/2c for December. Canadian carry-over on Aug. 1 was 3,000,000 bu. against 4,000,000 bu. last year.

CASH GRAIN
NEWS

Foreign demand for North American wheat was again active, with sales of 1,000,000 bu. estimated in all positions, mainly hard winter. Winnipeg claimed around 1,000,000 bu. for Montreal was sold. No. 2 hard c. l. f. Montreal sold during the two days over Chicago September, with No. 1 hard for first half September at the half 6 1/2c over September bid, and 6 1/2c over asked.

Country offerings of all grain to arrive were smaller and cash handlers express the belief that the sales of corn by central Illinois may be small from now on if the truck movement of old grain from that section to the southern part of the state, it was said, $1.00 per bu. was being paid for the grain.

So far there has been no buying of cash oats of consequence at Chicago to ship to the droughty areas in Ohio and Indiana, as the two days still have considerable home grown grain. Increasing reports of feeding of wheat to live stock are being received from the west and southwest.

Demand for cash wheat in the sample market at Chicago was fair with the basis steady to 1/4c higher. No. 1 red was 1/4c over to 1/2c under September and No. 2 red 1/4c under. No. 1 hard and No. 1 northern brought September price to 1/4c under, and No. 2 hard and No. 2 northern, 1/4c under the future.

A few cars of Argentine corn are said to have been received at New England points in the two days which showed quality rather unsatisfactory, the grain being hot and musty. The local spot basis was steady to 1c lower. Premiums as compared with September follow: No. 3 mixed, No. 2 yellow, 1/4c; white, 5/8c; No. 2 mixed, 2 1/2c; No. 2 white, 1/4c; No. 3 white, 1/4c. Shipping sales for the day were 110,000 bu., with 30,000 bu. booked to arrive.

Cash oats basis was steady as compared with the future, No. 2 white being September price, 1/4c over and No. 3 white, 1/4c under.

Official receipts of grain at Chicago Thursday: Wheat, 162 cars; corn, 225 cars; oats, 131 cars; rye, 2 cars; barley, 14 cars.

WORLD'S GRAIN MARKET NEWS

Wheat specialists are more inclined in their opinion as to the future course of prices than at any time of late. Foreign news is coming more and more from Winnipeg and Chicago, indicating a more conservative attitude on the part of the market. It is said that export wheat, which has been larger than expected and the market is regarded as having a better tone by a number of observers.

A few traders who have studied the corn situation from a crop and weather standpoint express themselves as bullish, and they are said to be accumulating grain on all sharp declines. One thing about corn, however, aside from a belief that the crop has been hurt more than is generally regarded by a majority of traders, is that corn is too high relative to wheat. A statement credited to Mr. Stone of the farm board, given yesterday, said that there was likely to be a famine of feed grain wheat. The corn end of the present crop year.

"Fundamental developments in wheat continue to favor better prices," says E. H. Saunders of J. S. Back & Co., St. Louis. Prospective reduction of French wheat duties are significantly important, and it is a reasonable expectation that other countries will quickly follow the lead.

ISSUE AUTHORIZED BY PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION OF INDIANA

The following information has been summarized by Mr. Norman A. Perry, President of Indianapolis Power & Light Company, from his letter dated August 14, 1930, copies of which may be obtained upon request, and is subject to the more complete information contained therein:

Business and Property: Indianapolis Power & Light Company, an Indiana corporation, supplies without competition all the electric power and light service in the City of Indianapolis and surrounding territory, except that supplied to the Indianapolis electric railway systems. The territory served by the Company covers more than 390 square miles.

The Company owns a modern and efficient electrical plant (including three principal steam power generating stations) and has under construction on the White River near Indianapolis, the first 70,000 kw. capacity of a super-power plant of 140,000 kw. ultimate capacity. The Company also purchases a large block of current for resale pending completion of its new power plant. Over 91% of the gross revenue of the Company is derived from the sale of electricity, of which more than 56% is derived from power contracts. The output of electric energy for the twelve months ended June 30, 1930 was 388,389,000 kw.

Capitalization: Upon completion of the present financing, the capitalization of the Company will be as follows:

Table showing capitalization details: First Mortgage Gold Bonds, Series A, 5% (including this issue) $15,000,000; Cumulative Preferred Stock ($100 par) 12,000,000; 6 1/2% Series 2,500,000; Common Stock (no par) 750,000 Shs. 750,000 Shs.

Purpose of Issue: The proceeds from the sale of these Bonds will provide funds to reimburse the Company for capital heretofore expended, to pay for the cost of the power plant now under construction, and for other corporate purposes.

Security: The First Mortgage Gold Bonds are secured, in the opinion of counsel, by a direct first mortgage on all of the fixed properties owned by the Company, including the new power plant now under construction.

Earnings: The earnings of Indianapolis Power & Light Company, as certified by Messrs. F. W. Lafrantz & Co., Certified Public Accountants, for the past three calendar years ended December 31, 1927, 1928 and 1929, and as per books of the Company for the twelve months ended June 30, 1930, were as follows:

Net earnings available for interest for the twelve months ended June 30, 1930, as shown above, were equivalent to approximately 2 1/2 times the annual interest requirements of the First Mortgage Gold Bonds, Series A, 5%, and outstanding upon completion of this financing. Net earnings for each of the twelve months' periods ended December 31 shown above were equivalent to substantially over twice such interest requirements. The above earnings do not reflect any benefits which are expected to accrue from the new White River power plant now under construction.
